SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

BOSTON AMERICAN
THE TWENTIETH CENTURY NEWSPAPER

WEATHER FORECAST. Cloudy To-day; Fair To-morrow

SPORTING Edition

VOL. 4—No. 304. 10 PAGES. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 22, 1908. 10 PAGES PRICE ONE CENT

A PLAIN STATEMENT OF FACTS

Since so much that is false and foolish has been related about the BOSTON AMERICAN and the newsboys, it is only right that the public should be apprised of the actual facts. These are the facts:

There has been no strike. A strike exists when the employes of an institution become dissatisfied with the terms and conditions of their employment and refuse longer to work for the institution. The newsboys of the AMERICAN are paid no wages. There are no terms or conditions of employment.

The newsboys are small merchants. They buy a manufactured product, the newspaper, at a certain price and sell it at a certain price. Their income is profit, not wages. If the price demanded by the management of the BOSTON AMERICAN for their manufactured product is excessive, the boys, as dealers, do not have to buy it or sell it. If other boys or other dealers desire to buy the BOSTON AMERICAN at its fixed price and sell it, they have a perfect right to do so. They have the same right that any merchant in Boston has to buy a certain line of goods if he finds it profitable, or refuse to buy it if he does not find it profitable.

There is not only no question of a strike of employes involved in the late difficulty, but there is no question of unionism involved in the late difficulty. The BOSTON AMERICAN is union made. Every article that goes into its construction is union made, every man engaged in its mechanical production is a union man, and the hours and conditions, down to the smallest detail, are in accordance with union [illegible].

Certain union labor leaders, therefore, who have denounced the AMERICAN have merely stupidly gone out of their way to meddle in a matter that does not concern them in any way, in which no question of union rules or regulations is involved. These leaders have simply shown, therefore, first their ineffectiveness, and, second, their ingratitude, for the BOSTON AMERICAN has been more devoted to the union cause than any other newspaper in New England.

The only question that actually exists, in which the public can be interested, is whether the BOSTON AMERICAN does charge an excessive price for its manufactured product, whether it does allow an insufficient percentage of profit to the newsboys and dealers.

The fairest way to arrive at an accurate estimate of this fact lies in a comparison of the percentage of profit allowed by other newspapers here in Boston and elsewhere. The Boston Globe allows the newsboys 60 per cent. of profit; the Boston Herald allows the newsboys 60 per cent. of profit; the Boston Transcript allows the newsboys 50 per cent. of profit; the BOSTON AMERICAN, under the present arrangement, allows the newsboys 66 2-3 per cent. of profit. There are a couple of other Boston evening publications which allow the newsboys something over 66 2-3 per cent. of profit merely in the central district, but these publications are not newspapers in the true sense of the word; they do not print any news, do not put any money into producing a live newspaper and, consequently, cannot hope to get and do not need to get the price that the other live Boston newspapers do get and must get.

Moreover, in all districts except the central district these weak sisters of journalism are sold to the boys through the Hotel and Railroad News Company, which gives the boys a smaller proportion of profit than the BOSTON AMERICAN allows them, for the Hotel and Railroad News Company sells papers to the boys at a rate which only allows them 60 per cent. profit, while the BOSTON AMERICAN maintains its own delivery system at the very considerable expense of $60,000 a year, and delivers its newspapers in all parts of Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Chelsea, Charlestown, East Boston and South Boston at a rate which allows the newsboys 66 2-3 per cent. profit without any extra expense to them whatever.

Moreover, the vast mass of the boys and dealers in this city have been making a larger gross profit from the AMERICAN than from any other newspaper, not only on account of the percentage of profit, but because they sell a great many more AMERICANS than they sell of any other newspaper, and because they sell the AMERICAN much more easily and readily than they sell any other newspaper.

Finally, the price that the BOSTON AMERICAN charges is the prevailing price in all the large cities of the country. It prevails in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis and elsewhere.

The BOSTON AMERICAN spends a great deal of money, produces an excellent, complete and high class newspaper that has a large and ready sale, and that allows the merchants, big or little, that buy it about the largest percentage of profit that is made in any legitimate business in the country. Part of the large expense of producing the BOSTON AMERICAN is due to the employment of union men in every department, and to the encouragement of high wages and short hours.

Let the union labor leaders who have denounced the AMERICAN do as much for unionism as the AMERICAN has done.

WOMAN SLAYS MAN AND SELF IN RESTAURANT

FIRES FIVE SHOTS INTO BODY OF NEW YORK ADVERTISING MAN AT MACY'S.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Frank Brady, an advertising manager on a New York paper, was shot and instantly killed by a woman in the restaurant of Macy's department store at noon to-day. The woman emptied a five-chambered revolver into Brady's body. Drawing a second revolver, she fired two bullets into her own head and was taken to the New York Hospital in a dying condition.

The woman was identified at the hospital as May Roberts Clark, of No. 214 West One Hundred and Thirty-third street. She died a few minutes after reaching that institution.

The couple occupied a table in the restaurant. Suddenly the woman opened a handbag, and taking out a revolver fired five shots at her companion. She dropped the gun she had been using, took a second from her handbag and fired two shots into her own body, lapsing into unconsciousness. Upon examination a third revolver was found in the woman's handbag.

BIG FIRE IN CHELSEA

Two Alarms Sent in and Appeal to Boston Department for Help—Flames Spread Into Tenement Block.

Fire which started in the rendering plant of John Lawler, on the corner of Auburn and Maple streets, Chelsea, at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon threatens to destroy a dozen tenement houses in the vicinity.

At 2 o'clock the rendering plant and the rag shops of G. Ostier, Israel Rubin and J. Weiss on Williams street were in flames and fires had broken out on the roofs of a number of the tenement houses.

The occupants of these houses, mostly Hebrews, have carried most of their furniture into the streets and are doing all they can to aid the firemen in fighting the flames.

Two alarms had been sent in at 2 o'clock, from box 28, and many firemen and several pieces of apparatus had been summoned from Everett.

At 1.30 o'clock fire headquarters in Boston was notified that the Chelsea and Everett firemen were unable to handle the fire, and an alarm was sent in calling out the companies stationed in East Boston.

The tenement houses are all of wooden construction and because of the dry weather the roofs are in a readily inflammable condition.

High Wind Scatters Sparks.

The rag shops had been almost entirely consumed at 2 o'clock and there was little left of the rendering plant.

The high wind which seemed to increase [illegible] after the fire began, is carrying sparks [illegible] away from the rag shops and rendering plants and it is feared that [illegible] of firemen may have to be sent from the present fire zone to other sections of [illegible].

Sparks are also falling among the heaps of furniture piled up near the burning buildings, and considerable of it may be destroyed before it can be moved beyond the range of the sparks.

The flames until a few minutes after 2 o'clock had not got beyond the area bounded by Williams, Auburn and Male streets, but the atmosphere had become so heated there that the firemen suffered much [illegible] fighting to prevent the total destruction of this section of Chelsea.

Insurance men estimated at 2 o'clock that [illegible] damage had been done, and if the flames are not conquered within the next two hours it is believed that the damage will have been more than [illegible].

Letters Baring "Vice Den" Secrets Read; COMSTOCK THAW WITNESS

Notes Written by White's Slayer to Head of Anti-Vice Society Are Produced in Court.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The letters written by Harry K. Thaw to Anthony Comstock, head of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, in which the young millionaire [illegible] the alleged brutal treatment of young girls by prominent men in [illegible] places in New York, were read at Thaw's trial to-day.

One of the men Thaw particularly complained of was Stanford White. Thaw told of the studios in the Madison Square tower and in the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-second street houses, which were graphically described in the testimony of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

GIRL VICTIMS OF WHITE.

Thaw mentioned the names of girls in his letters and [illegible] of mouth to Mr. Comstock [illegible]. While the names were read to the jury to-day and the letters admitted in evidence, the AMERICAN, out of consideration for the young women, has omitted them from this report.

Mr. Comstock testified that after the complaint made by Thaw he had assigned men to get evidence against the alleged orgies in the various places. So far as the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-second street houses were concerned nothing was learned to corroborate Thaw's allegations.

"We tried to hire an apartment in the Tower," said Mr. Comstock, "but found that there was a long list of applicants on file, and we had to abandon the project."

Describes Gilded Dens.

In the first letter Thaw wrote to Comstock he described the three places. Girl's screams had been heard in one of them, he said. In the next letter he suggested that Miss Helen Gould might assist Comstock if he needed more financial help. He said that if a plumber or roofer were engaged he might get the necessary evidence.

In the third letter Thaw mentioned the name of a girl, now a prominent actress. He said that he had told Lispenard Stewart about her, and he had promised to protect her.

"The blackguard met her," Thaw wrote, "and he became a great friend of the mother, as in all the bad cases. There is certainly no man like him."

When court convened to-day Evelyn Thaw was not in the trial room. Neither was Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw nor Mrs. George L. Carnegie at the court house. Josiah Thaw sat in his accustomed place.

EVELYN'S BRIDESMAID ON STAND

Miss Frances E. Pierce was the first witness. She was a friend of Evelyn Nesbit and went with her to Pittsburg when she was married. She acted as Evelyn's bridesmaid and was a witness to the will Harry Thaw made after the ceremony.

Mr. Littleton offered Thaw's queer will, but as Miss Pierce could not swear positively that it was exactly the same as it had been when she signed her name as a witness, it was laid aside for a time. She identified the famous codicil to the will, and this was admitted as evidence.

"I am faithful unto death and beyond. Fear not, you can believe in me. So let your heart feel there is faith."

This is an extract from one of Harry Thaw's love letters to Evelyn Nesbit. It was written in November, 1903, while Thaw was still in Europe. Evelyn had returned to New York after her travels with him abroad.

The letter was sent to Frederick W. Longfellow, Thaw's lawyer at that time, to be given to Evelyn.

ATTY.-GEN. MALONE DECIDES IN FAVOR OF INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE

ANNOUNCES HE WILL BEGIN PROCEEDINGS TO DETERMINE TWO LEADING PARTIES.

Because he "deemed it his duty," Attorney-General Dana Malone to-day granted the petition of the Independence League of Massachusetts and signed informations which will be submitted to the Supreme Court by Herbert Parker and Junius T. Auerbach for the purpose of determining the rights of the Independence League as one of the "two leading political parties."

The Independence League will now "try the title" of Frank K. Stearns of Lowell to be a member of the board of police and the "title" of Hugh C. McOsker of Lowell to be a member of the board of registrars of voters.

Both appointments were made late in December, after the canvass of the gubernatorial vote by Governor Guild and his Council, by Mayor Frederick W. Farnham, Republican. The official canvass showed that the Democratic party's candidate for Governor received [illegible] votes and the candidate of the Independence League for Governor 75,842 votes.

Immediately after that canvass, and before Mayor Farnham had made an appointment, a formal demand upon him was made for recognition by representatives of the Independence League. Counsel for the League immediately began action. Quite incidentally, it may be stated that the first Farnham appointments failed to please the members of his own party. He has since made a new Police Board appointment, which, being the last, it is sought to upset.

6,000 Places at Stake.

Six thousand places in Massachusetts depend upon the outcome of that inquiry. In that many cases, the law provides for representation by the "two leading political parties."

"'Two leading political parties,' say the statutes, [illegible] apply to the political parties which cast the highest and next highest [illegible] for Governor at the preceding annual election."

Attorney-General Malone was asked by Herbert Parker, former Attorney-General, and Junius T. Auerbach of Boston, counsel for the Independence League in this matter, to grant the use of his name in an endeavor to oust the Stearns and the McOsker titles to office.

Mr. Malone grants the request, "because the questions raised," he declares, "are of great public importance."

This is the Attorney-General's statement made to-day:

What Malone Says.

"Without assuming to pass upon the merits of the contention of the applicants for the use of the name of the Attorney-General, and in the exercise of the discretion inherent in the office, I deem it my duty to sign the information in order that the questions raised thereby, which are of great public importance, may be judicially settled by a court of competent jurisdiction, and I have, therefore, signed the information as requested.

"An application for the use of the name of the Attorney General upon an information in equity to try the title of a person elected or appointed to office is addressed to the sound discretion of the Attorney General. It is not necessary that he should be convinced that the information which he is requested to sign can be maintained if the questions raised by it appear to be doubtful and are of public importance.

"It is his duty to grant the use of his name and to sign the information even when he may be of opinion that it is doubtful if such information can be maintained, upon the ground that the questions involved cannot otherwise be officially determined and settled."

SWIFT ORDERED OFF COMMON

One hundred and [illegible] members of the "Army of the Unemployed" were to-day ordered off the Common, where they had assembled near the Soldiers' monument to hear a speech by Morrison I. Swift in answer to Governor Guild, by two patrolmen from Station 4.

The men moved away with reluctance. Swift was unable to secure a permit to speak on the Common.

FISHERMAN LOST AT SEA.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 22.—Captain Turner of the fishing schooner Fannie Reed of this port reports the loss by drowning of Lawrence Marchant, a member of his crew, while fishing in a dory east of Cape Elizabeth Lightship. The dory was capsized by rough weather.

LOWER PRICES FOR STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The stock market opened almost generally lower. Northern Pacific [illegible], advanced [illegible] and reacted [illegible]. Reading opened unchanged, declined [illegible] and rallied [illegible]. Amalgamated opened [illegible] lower and rallied [illegible]. Smelting opened [illegible] higher and reacted [illegible]. St. Paul lost a point in all. New York Central gained and lost [illegible]. B. R. T. lost [illegible] and Union Pacific 1 per cent. Southern Pacific opened unchanged and advanced [illegible]. Sugar opened [illegible] lower and rallied [illegible].

At the end of fifteen minutes' trading the market was irregular, with slight differences.

and Mrs. George Carnegie. I am so glad. Please mail the ring quick. I am glad that the dress fits and also that you would wear it only for me. I have something very important to tell you when I see you. You know that I have never lied to you. I promised you that I will never swear again. You are unlucky enough and I don't want you to worry. I got it for you and him too. You have had all faith. You know that I have always treated you with respect and have always been honest with you. Now you know that I have never deceived you and that your trust has never been betrayed. So, dear, you can believe in me. So let your heart feel there is faith. You know you always said that always. Some things are faithful unto death and beyond. You know [illegible] at least one is, dear. Give my regards to [illegible]. You ask me not to see any young ladies and I have not seen any [illegible] one, and that by accident. Said I saw something? In three weeks you have gotten a reputation which is dangerous and also scandalous. How would you like someone to say what you have said? (The word someone was crossed out.) I understand, though, and expect you to do your part. I think that someone got you to say that. Maybe a stranger. And they say you are going to pieces physically and mentally. I received your letter. If you had only let me save you before you were sixteen it would [illegible] have known the world would have already; I would have protected you as a friend and stood by you [illegible] without demanding any reward.

You know about those needles. They were not for morphine or anything. I have never used any dope. You know I have never lied to you.

Sincerely yours,
H. K. THAW.

JEROME FIGHTS TO BAR THAW'S WILL

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—At the opening of the session today Harry Thaw occupied the seat in the [illegible] he has had since the trial opened. He was the only relative to greet the prisoner as the latter walked to his seat this morning. The first witness called today was Miss Frances Pierce of No. 445 West Forty-fifth street. She said that her home was in Philadelphia.

(By Littleton.)

Q.—Do you remember when you first met Mrs. Evelyn Thaw? A.—In May, 1904, at a boarding house in West Thirty-seventh street.

Q.—Did you accompany her to Pittsburg at the time of her wedding? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Were you present at the wedding? A.—Yes.

Q.—And did you stay at the home of the defendant's mother? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you witness the signing of a paper there? A.—I did.

Shown Harry Thaw's Will.

The witness was then shown the will and codicil made by Harry K. Thaw at his home after his marriage and she identified her signature, which was attached to it.

Q.—Do you remember seeing the defendant sign them? A.—Yes.

Mr. Littleton offered the will in evidence, whereupon Jerome took occasion to question the witness before interposing any objection.

(By Jerome.)

Q.—Is this the same document that you signed in Pittsburg? A.—Yes, it looks like it. It is the same size and the same kind of paper.

Q.—Did you read the whole paper? A.—No.

Q.—How much of it did you see? A.—When I put my name to it I saw the last page and the part of another.

Q.—Then you are not positive that it is the same? A.—Well, it looks like it.

Q.—You mean that it is a bundle of papers similar to that of which you attached your signature? A.—Yes.

Justice Dowling suggested that something more definite be established to indicate that the document is the one the witness signed before it could be admitted into evidence. Mr. Littleton said that for the sake of time the District Attorney in view of the admission of the document at the last trial might consent to the reading of the testimony of lawyer Gleason, given at that time. Jerome declined to assent to this declaring that he might want to question Mr. Gleason if he was called as a witness.

Threatens Delay in Trial

Mr. Littleton said that Mr. Gleason was out of this State, being very ill, somewhere in the South, and that to force the defense to secure his appearance at this trial would greatly delay the proceedings.

He renewed his offer of the admission of the document after Miss Pierce declared that she had every reason to believe the will was the one that she had signed. Again Jerome took up the examination of the witness preparatory to making an objection.

Q.—(By Jerome.) Have you any other recollection of this document except that you saw it as a mass of typewritten pages? A.—It looks like the one I saw.

Q.—But only for that reason? A.—Yes, and that my signature is on the last page.

Asks Will Be Barred.

Jerome then objected to the admission of the document on the ground that there was nothing to show that it was in the same condition as when the witness signed it.

Justice Dowling said he would not hold the defense down to a strict proof that the will is the same as when signed by the witness, but he would rule that the document is substantially the same as when it left the hands of Lawyer Gleason, who had possession of it almost from the time that it was executed.

(By the Court.)

Q.—Are you willing to swear, madam, that the document offered by the defence is in the same condition now as it was when you saw it? A.—It looks like it. The papers were fastened.

Q.—Fastened the same way? A.—I can't say so.

"I will exclude the will temporarily," said Justice Dowling.

The codicil was next offered in evidence, and again Mr. Jerome examined the witness before putting in an objection.

(By Jerome.)

Q.—Did you look at this document at the time you signed it? A.—Yes, I lifted up the sheets and glanced at them.

Q.—Did you see Thaw write anything in this document? A.—Yes, he took the paper and wrote something in it before giving it to me to sign.

Jerome also objected to the codicil. He argued that the document had not been properly identified as in the handwriting of Harry Thaw, and also that there was nothing to show in what condition the paper had been since it was signed.

Justice Dowling, in overruling Jerome's objections, said that the situation was entirely different from that in regard to the will.

"This document," said the court, "consisting of four pages, shows no marks or insertions that could possibly have been placed in it after it's original preparation, except on the last page, and this witness has testified that she saw the defendant write the interlined words. Therefore I will admit it."

Thaw's chief counsel decided to withhold the codicil from the jury until the court determined the question of admitting the will. Littleton will renew his efforts to get the two documents before the jury.

Littleton again suddenly changed his tactics and announced that he would read the codicil. It was only after Jerome said that he wanted to cross-examine Miss Pierce in regard to the papers that Thaw's counsel adopted this course.

The codicil had been admitted at the first trial, with the proviso that none of the names contained in it would be disclosed. Under the ruling of the court all the names were made public at this trial.

It also referred to legacies of Thaw's "other American girls, victims of the said Stanford White," and for Anthony Comstock and others to provide for the prosecution of the man charged with being implicated in the "orgies with White."

The will provided $7,500 for Marie Cortney and $2,500 to each of the other women mentioned. The document was dated April 4, 1905, the date that Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit were married and it left the handling of the money to Rody T. Marshall, a lawyer, of Pittsburg. Anthony Comstock was called to the witness stand as soon as the paper had been read.

THAW'S VISIT TO COMSTOCK.

(By Littleton.)

Q.—Do you know Harry K. Thaw? A.—Yes, met him in February, 1904.

Q.—Where did you meet him? A.—At my office, No. 140 Nassau street.

Q.—What took place? A.—It was February 24 when he came to the office. He made a statement in reference to a party who was [illegible] young girls, drugging them with wine and attacking them.

Q.—Anything else take place? A.—Not that I recall.

Q.—Did he tell you where the place was? A.—Yes, this particular place was in West Twenty-second street.

Q.—Did he tell you about any other places? A.—No, on that particular visit.

Q.—Was there anything else? A.—I do not think so. I've given the substance of it as nearly as I can remember.

Q.—When did you see Thaw next? A.—On November 7, 1904. In the meantime I received a letter. It was registered and was sent from Paris.

Q.—Have you the original of this? A.—No, but I have a copy. I was requested to return the original to the writer.

Thaw's Letter from Paris.

Littleton then offered as exhibit "M" a copy of the letter Thaw sent from Paris.

Q.—Did you receive any other communications? A.—Yes, in November of the same year and about December 15, 1904.

These letters were also marked for identification.

Q.—When did you next have a personal interview? A.—In November, 1904, at my office.

Q.—What happened? A.—I produced the papers showing a diagram of the premises in West Twenty-second street that we had discussed. He spoke of Stanford White and Henry W. Poor. He said that they were in the habit of using the rooms, and that there was a collection of various obscene pictures, and that he knew a collection of men were taking young girls to this place and drugging them with wine and ruining them.

Detailed Men to Watch.

Q.—Anything else? A.—He was very anxious that I take steps to secure evidence against these parties. I assured him that I would proceed in the matter. I detailed two men to watch these places. The men were to watch for one week to see if any one went in or out.

He said that he knew of some young girls who had been there, and said that he would get the names and send them to me. He wanted the men exposed and put out of the way so that they could not continue their practices. I suggested that as the girls were under age he take the matter to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. I also told him that if he could get me the names of girls who had been in those rooms, and if they would testify that unlawful pictures were displayed there, I would get a search warrant and investigate the premises.

Q.—Anything else? A.—I told him that I had written to the society. He said that he had been followed to my office by men who were waiting for him in the hall. I detailed one of my men to see if there was anyone there, and I went out myself, but we saw no one.

The witness produced a memorandum of his visits from Thaw and was allowed to refer to it for dates.

Tried to Hire Room in Tower.

It was December, 1904, when I had another interview with him after," said Comstock, after looking at his notes.

Q.—What was said? A.—I told him that we had found no evidence of the occurrences in the Twenty-second street place. We discussed hiring an apartment in the tower for the purpose of putting one of my men there so that we could get necessary evidence to convict. One of my assistants made applications to rent an apartment in the tower, but he was told that there was a long list of applicants on file, and that it would be some time before his application would be reached.

Q.—When did you hear from him again? A.—By letter, January, 1905, and again in April of the same year.

Q.—Did you see him after December 17, 1904? A.—Yes, I met him on the street two or three days before the shooting.

Littleton then read the letters. The first one had been introduced at the first trial. It described "Three places devoted to revels; filled with pictures of questionable character. You reach it by doors, like those to gambling houses over a toy store," and the letter goes on to tell of workmen who heard girls' cries for help.

Describes Gilded Dens.

The letter continued: "The places were partially closed several years ago at the time of the 'Pie Girl.' There is probably nothing to do here until one of the scoundrels is seen entering with a girl.

"There have been thousands of crimes committed. In a place at No. 122 East Twenty-second street, near the Charity Organization Society and the Society for the Prevention of Crime, they also commit these crimes. It is a building that appears half closed, and contains works of art, a bed and a bath. Everything is expressive. From the top front room there is a door that is lined with pictures, and it conceals itself in a wall. This door leads into a small secret room, lined with mirrors, which is lighted with electric lights. In the front room is a valuable picture of a woman. It is peculiar in its infamous suggestiveness."

With the letter was enclosed a small diagram of the premises.

Helen Gould Might Help

"Dear Mr. Comstock: I hope that you are thoroughly recovered. With this you will find a paper full of information. If you want a copy for Mr. Jerome I will send one. Meanwhile I shall not mention this in any way, for these men have lots of money and some influence. Also many criminals have lawyers like Hummel to assist them. Of course, they would much regret if their society friends knew of their relations with Hummel. A clerk came to me from White's office, named Hartnett, to look after this matter, but I would have nothing to do with him. A faithful plumber can get you testimony of all these crimes. A workman on the roof of No. 122 East Twenty-second street must drop some tools through the skylight and see the picture of the naked woman hanging on the wall.

"Last year a woman brought a suit in Paris, and it was brought out that she was the original of this picture.

"If you wish to see the letters supposed to have been written in New York, write to me. Miss Helen Gould might assist you."

Writes of Edna Chase

The third letter, which was marked "Personal," was as follows:

New York, Nov. 11, 1904.

Mr. Anthony Comstock, 140 Nassau street, city:

Dear Mr. Comstock: Edna Chase lives with her mother at No. 414 West Twenty-second street—telephone 1158 Thirty-eighth street—a music hall. She is dark, well grown, has fine features and is sixteen years and two months old.

A year ago the blackguard went after her, but I saved her when she needed help. Have referred her to Mr. Lispenard Steward. He said that he would look after her—she was so innocent and etc.

In the Spring some people said that he was devoted to some girl not in society. But it probably was a lie, but he took less care of Edna Chase when he left for Europe than he did when they went away. The blackguard met her and he became a great friend of the mother as in all the bad cases. There is certainly no man like him.

He would not attempt to try to cause any court of his innocence. Please destroy this.

Case of Manicure Girl.

The letters were all admitted and read to the jury.

The next letter was written on a letter head of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel and was as follows:

Dear Mr. Comstock:—Besides the four victims I spoke of within fourteen months, there is another. She is a young manicure girl on Twenty-third street, I think. The blackguard asked her to marry him and then he left her. This all got out and it is spoken of in the newspaper offices. In a few days I hope to send you her name.

The blackguard went to her house and sent her sister to Europe. I will tell you all about this as soon as I can get down to see you. Please destroy this. Enclosed is a secret service fund with number. Yours sincerely, H. K. T.

"Did the defendant contribute to your society under the name of Ferguson?" asked Mr. Littleton of Anthony Comstock.

A.—He did. I was accustomed to enter his contributions under that name.

Q.—How much did he contribute in all? A.—About $400.

Here Jerome too kthe witness in hand.

Q.—How long have you been connected with the society? A.—Since 1872.

Q.—The society has devoted itself to the suppression of vice? A.—We always proceed when we secure legal evidence.

Q.—Matters similar to those laid before you [illegible] defendant had come to you before [illegible] yes.

Q.—[illegible] you met Thaw before he called on you in October, 1903? A.—No. I was ill for some time before that, and when I returned I [illegible]d the letter with a check for $100 in [illegible]ffice from Harry K. Thaw.

Q.—How [illegible] personal interviews did you have [illegible] defendant? A.—I should say abo[illegible]

Q.—And they took place at your office? A.—Yes.

Finds Two More Victims.

In a letter written from the Hotel Wolcott, Thaw told Comstock that he had discovered two more victims of White. The letter follows:

Dear Mr. Comstock: There are two more victims. One is a girl about fifteen and a half years old, in the Casino Theatre, and the other is Miss ——— was sixteen years old on September 27, but the S. P. C. C. may make her two months younger.

Yours sincerely, H. K. T.

Encloses $100 for Work.

The next letter received by Comstock follows:

Dear Mr. Comstock: Enclosed is check for $100 for Ferguson. I hope this finds you well. I have learned that the suggestive picture of the woman is not in the house at No. 122 East Twenty-second street. However, we are not ready to go on yet. I received a very interesting report of the work of last year. Very sincerely, H. K. T.

The next letter was written on the stationery of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria. It follows:

Dear Mr. Comstock: Enclosed is $100 for secret service fund. If you have a square man, let him follow this man Lang and a very young girl will be found, who have the top room at the Casino Theatre.

The last letter was very brief. It read:

Dear Mr. Comstock: I trust this will find you very well. Enclosed is $100 more for the secret service fund.

Very truly, H. K. T.

Q.—When did he leave the diagram at your office? A.—I think the diagram came with the first letter after my conversation with him.

Q.—How long a time were you discussing these things with the defendant? A.—From about February, 1904, when I first met Thaw, until a few days before the shooting of Mr. White. Shortly before that time I met him in the street and had some conversation with him.

Jerome then asked the witness about the letter written October 13, 1904. This was the letter that had the reference to the "pie girl."

The District Attorney questioned Comstock along this line to establish the fact that there was nothing incoherent in the communication.

Q.—Did you know to what he referred when he wrote of the pie girl? A.—Oh, yes. I know it was to a famous dinner called that name.

Q.—Did you ever get into the rooms in Twenty-second street or in those in Twenty-fourth street? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did Thaw in his conversation with you ever charge that these men were guilty of crimes? A.—He did.

Q.—In any of these talks did he mention the name of ———? A.—Yes.

Q.—You wrote Thaw letters? A.—I did.

Q.—You sent them by mail? A.—Yes, after I had copies taken of them. It had been my practice for years.

Q.—Have you the letter book with the answers? A.—No, but I can get it.

Q.—Did you have any understanding with Mr. Thaw about this term "blackguard?" A.—I did.

Q.—Was it any particular man? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was it? A.—Stanford White.

Q.—Was there any discussion between you and Thaw about using that name? A.—No, he used the name blackguard in referring to Stanford White.

DESPONDENT VETERAN TRIES SUICIDE THRICE

JUMPS INTO RIVER, ATTEMPTS TO CHOKE HIMSELF, THEN POUNDS HEAD ON TABLE.

Despondent and apparently suffering from a mental affliction, Marcellus Kidder, a shoemaker, sixty-four years old, who has been boarding for a short time at No. 70 Green street, Charlestown, made three desperate attempts to kill himself today.

He jumped from Harvard bridge into three feet of water and broke both his ankles, tried to choke himself when, after a hard fight, he was placed in an ambulance, and at the Cambridge Relief Hospital he pounded his head on the operating table on which he was awaiting an examination by the hospital doctors.

"I am friendless and penniless," said Kidder when he was finally securely fastened to the operating table, "and I decided that I had better end it all. I am an old soldier, and tried some time ago to get into the Soldier's Home at Bath, N. Y., but they wouldn't take me, so I wandered to Boston."

Jumped Into River.

Kidder appeared at the Cambridge end of the Harvard bridge at 9 o'clock this morning, and with hundreds of passengers in street cars and pedestrians watching him, he climbed on the railing and jumped into the river.

His ankles broke against the hard mud bottom, but in a moment he was on his hands and knees and crawling toward the deeper water.

Before he had crawled ten feet William De Courcy, of No. 18 School street, Cambridgeport, who had seen him leap from the bridge, was at his side and trying to pull him to the shore.

Kidder fought with all his strength, but De Courcy soon overcame him and had him out of the water.

Men who were passing with a coil of rope lowered it over the bridge, an end was fastened to Kidder, and he was hauled to the sidewalk.

Meanwhile an ambulance had been called from Station 2. Officers Blanchard, Rowe and Doherty had been ordered by the captain at the station to hurry to the bridge, and they, with Drivers Dennis Sullivan and Fred McLaughlin and City Physician Dr. William Brosseau, lifted Kidder into the ambulance and started for the Relief Hospital.

Tried to Choke Himself.

They had hardly left the bridge when an officer noticed that Kidder was trying to choke himself, and they had to hold his arms until the hospital was reached.

Before the hospital doctors and nurses realized how desperate Kidder was he had pounded his head against the operating table until he was almost unconscious.

Kidder is said to have served with distinction in the Civil War and until old age and illness made it impossible for him to do so he earned his living as a shoemaker.

At No. 70 Green street, Charlestown, Kidder is not known.

RUNAWAY WIFE JAILED, WEEPS FOR OLD HOME

Sentenced for Theft of Shirt Waists, Regrets Flight from Babe

"I am sick and tired of the life I have been leading. All I want is for my husband to forgive me and take me back to my baby boy," cried pretty Mrs. Clara Morton, no more than thirty-two years of age, after she was given a month in the House of Correction today at Police Court.

Stranded, deserted by the man who has drawn her from her happy home and then tempted her to stealing by stealing, the young woman was yesterday afternoon stole four shirtwaists, valued at $32, from a department store. Today told the Boston police such a straight story that she was believed, and a telegram sent to the deserted husband. Mrs. Morton said:

"My home is at Vernon River, Prince Edward Island. My husband runs a general store there. I am the mother of a pretty two-year-old boy. About a month ago a dance was given in the village, and my husband and I attended. At the dance we met a traveling salesman.

"He was so well dressed and so up-to-date that he just dazzled me. He lingered around two days after the dance. I went away with him. I took but few clothes in a little satchel and $30 in a handbag.

"We went to other provincial towns, and then I found that the man was not a salesman, but a medicine fakir. He made me go to the different towns and study the conditions and sell medicines.

"Two days ago we came to Boston. Up to this time he had treated me well, but then he began to act differently. I began to long for home and my baby. Yesterday we were looking in a store window and I saw some pretty shirtwaists. I said I would like to have one.

"Well, go in and take one. Slip it under your coat and come out. No one will see you," was the advice given.

"I protested, but he laughed at me and said it was easy, and finally I went in and took one. It was easy, and then I liked some others so well that I took them. When I came out I found I had been seen. Then the inspector arrested me."

FEARFUL ITCHING AFFLICTS FAMILY

For Six Months They Suffered Tortures—Patches of Humor Became Raw—Could Hardly Sleep—Medical Treatment Did No Good bu

TWO SETS OF CUTICURA CURED THEM IN TEN DAYS

"Last February my sister broke out with a humor which gradually spread to the rest of the family, I being the last to take it. It manifested itself in patches varying from the size of a pe[illegible] to that of a silver dollar. The joints [illegible] our limbs were most affected. The parts where the skin was tender soon became raw and irritated and we were able to sleep but little because the itching got so bad at night. My sister consulted a physician but he was unable to name the disease and the treatment he prescribed did no good at all. As the warm weather came on we were tortured worse than ever, the irritated parts causing us to scratch until they would bleed. In August, when it was at its worst, my sister was given a cake of Cuticura Soap. This she tried and it afforded so much relief that I bought the complete treatment, consisting of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills. This we used according to directions and immediately the humor began to disappear. I then bought another set and the whole family were cured by these two, the blotches disappearing in ten days. After this we used the Cuticura Pills for ten days more to be sure that the humor had gone to stay. We have not been troubled since and we all think that if it had not been for the Cuticura Remedies we would have been suffering yet. George W. Brown, 18 Linden St., Rockland, Mass., Jan. 28, 1907."

Morrison I. Swift Answers Governor on Common To-day

CHARGED WITH BEING AN "ANARCHIST" AND "AGITATOR" IN ATTACK FROM STATE HOUSE.

Morrison I. Swift, forty-five years old, of No. 22 Dundee street, whom Governor Guild caustically arraigned to-day as a "political advertiser seeking personal advancement," is prepared for his appearance on Boston Common early this afternoon to greet the "20,000 unemployed" whom he had called together, with "their friends." Swift this morning let it be known that he was "going to reply to the Governor."

Governor Guild said some pretty sharp things about Swift, largely as a result of Swift's frank exposition of the Swift views to an audience with his excellency one week ago and the investigations that the Governor had since been making into Mr. Swift's "past."

In 1894 Swift led the unemployed to the State House to see Governor Greenhalge. He has since lived at times in California, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York.

Arrested During Coal Strike.

During the coal strike Swift was arrested in Hazleton, Pa. More recently he was fined $10 in New York for pasting a circular criticising the riot on the house of John D. Rockefeller. Swift paid $5. He served out the other five in jail.

SWIFT READS MANIFESTO TO FOLLOWERS.

Leader of "unemployed" army and photograph of crowd which assembled to hear him speak. Many of those in the picture are not members of the "army" which follows Mr. Swift, but are merely onlookers who stopped to hear him out of curiosity.

Governor Guild in a statement to the public called Swift an "agitator," charged that he does not belong in Massachusetts, declared that his memorial to the Governor was made up of "mere abuse and persecution of all capital," called him "not a wage-earner" and "ineligible for election in any genuine labor union," and finally that "his own admission shows that he is not himself unemployed and that he needs no relief in food, clothing or shelter."

A stenographic report of the Swift-Guild interview of last week represented the Governor and the man whom he to-day denounced as an "agitator" with having had this colloquy:

The Governor—Do I understand you to advise men to break windows and steal food and clothing?

What Guild Calls Anarchy.

Swift—As an extreme measure, if a man is starving I advise him to take food wherever he can find it. If neither society, organized as a whole, nor the individual, will help a starving man, I advise him to take food wherever he can find it. And, further, if a man is forced to do it to save himself from starvation and death, I advise him to break a window and steal—steal an overcoat, or anything, if by that means he will be arrested and taken care of by the State and provided with food and lodging.

The Governor—That is not Socialism; it is anarchy.

Governor Guild in his statement says:

"An investigation by the police of the agitator responsible for certain recent disturbances shows that he has no regular residence in this Commonwealth—that his recent stay has been scarcely a month in duration—that although posing as an advocate of Socialism he did not register and did not vote in behalf of the principles in which he says he believes. Inquiry in labor circles has developed the report that he is not a wage-earner, is ineligible for election in any genuine labor union, and, further, that he is not recognized as a leader of labor or by labor leaders. His own admission shows that he is not himself unemployed, and that he needs no relief in food, clothing or shelter.

Treated with Courtesy.

"He has been treated with exactly the same courtesy and granted exactly the same privileges that are given to every citizen of Massachusetts. It is to be regretted that he has not only failed to keep his appointments with constituted authority as agreed upon in advance, but has adopted methods which he was told in advance could not be countenanced, and in every way sought to hamper and interfere with the orderly conduct of general business of the Commonwealth for his own personal advertisement.

"Individual citizens and delegates of organizations will be welcomed as usual, but no further attention at the executive department will be paid to one who is neither unemployed nor a representative of labor nor a citizen of Massachusetts nor a wage-earner, and whose alleged interest on behalf of the unemployed of Massachusetts has been confined to two attempts at sensational self-advertisement during a period of eleven years. The right to free speech extends even to a man who as a matter of record openly and publicly reviles all religion, encourages unchastity in women and advocates house-breaking and theft.

"It is an insult to many honest and sincere men to call such preaching socialism. It is anarchy. Self-respecting citizens must judge for themselves whether they can afford to associate publicly with one who so abuses the privileges of American freedom. Constituted authority, however, will not countenance such abuse. The common sense of the people is the only defence needed against bombastic mouthing too silly to be dangerous."

"The Swift resolutions show an almost complete ignorance of conditions and law in this Commonwealth.

Free Employment Offices.

"Free employment offices, recently established, are now maintained by the Commonwealth in Boston, Springfield and Fall River. They have been since August securing positions at the rate of from 1,000 to 2,000 a month without charge. The system of references is much more thorough and perfect than in the private employment bureaus, and the Governor calls upon all public spirited citizens using any kind of labor who really desire to give prompt and immediate relief to forward to the State employment office at any one of these three cities notice of any needed labor, skilled or otherwise, domestic service or otherwise, with the full assurance that these are not charitable institutions for tramps, but regular employment offices for worthy working people, ready to furnish respectable and honorable labor of every kind, whether the need is for a mill manager, a bookkeeper, a machinist or a nursery maid.

"No person in Boston needs to starve or freeze while the office of the overseers of the poor on Hawkins street is open.

"The fifteen applicants to the executive department have been provided with blanks and their addresses sent to the various appropriate agencies provided for the purpose.

"Statements to the effect that they are swamped with applications are officially denied by their officers. They declare themselves well equipped for the purpose and will be supported thoroughly.

"The difficulty of the situation is in separating honest men really in need of work from political advertisers seeking personal advancement.

"It is reported to the Governor that, although this January does not compare favorably with the last January in regard to the employment of labor, it does show better rather than worse conditions than the average for twenty years. The overseers of the poor of Boston report that up to date there has been no increase but an actual decrease for the year in application for aid, the recent increase for the month being very slight. Some weeks ago the Governor authorized certain of the commissioners, wherever possible to employ a large number of men for a short time rather than a small number of men for a long time."

Governor's Reply to Swift; Charges That Roused His Ire

GOV. GUILD'S ANSWER

The preaching of Morrison I. Swift is anarchy instead of Socialism.

Free employment bureaus secure positions for from 1,000 to 2,000 per month without charge.

Most of those who have visited the State House for relief have not applied to existing organizations for employment and relief.

This month shows better labor conditions than the average for twenty years.

The [illegible] combination of [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] is not only unconstitutional, but impossible.

Police investigation shows that "the agitator responsible for certain recent disturbances" has no regular residence in this State, is not a wage-earner, is ineligible for election in any genuine labor union, and needs no relief.

Right of free speech is extended even to a man who as a matter of record openly and publicly reviles all religion, encourages unchastity in women and advocates housebreaking and theft.

SWIFT'S STATEMENT

"We will not lie down and die like rats.

"If a man is starving, I advise him to take food wherever he can find it.

"If a man is forced to do it to save himself from starvation and death, I advise him to break a window and steal. If by that means he will be arrested and taken care of by the State.

"When in a society a few men have absorbed all the wealth, leaving many others without food or the means of shelter the whole moral question has changed.

"The wealthy classes of this country, the great monopolies, have absorbed the wealth of your labor so that they have it all and you have nothing.

"The whole world of workers is working up to a most tremendous revolution."

SPEAKER COLE'S CASE BEFORE GRAND JURY

ESSEX COUNTY PANEL CONSIDERS CHARGES OF RATE FAVORS FOR ANDOVER FRIENDS.

Charges that Speaker John Nelson Cole violated Chapter 111, Section 234 of the Revised Laws by securing reduced rates of fare for a number of his friends in Andover from the Boston & Maine Railroad are being heard today before the Essex County Grand Jury at Salem.

The case was taken up by the Grand Jury at 12 o'clock and was presented by District Attorney Scott W. Peters.

Seventeen witnesses were on hand to testify, eight of them girls who attend business colleges or other educational institutions in Boston and live in Andover.

The male witnesses, with the exception of Roy W. Lindsey, who is an instructor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and William H. Foster, an artist connected with a Boston newspaper, are also students. The seventeen witnesses are:

Dorothy L. Wakefield, Bertha P. Coutts, Catherine French, Ethel Paton, Emily White, Mildred Ward, H. Florence Richardson, Grace A. Jenkins, Roy W. Lindsey, John A. Kydd, Dana W. Clark, Harold Saunders, Chester A. Farmer, John J. Geagan, George E. Abbott, William H. Foster, Bartholomew Sullivan.

The investigation by the Grand Jury is the result of persistent attacks made on Speaker Cole in pamphlets issued by Bernard M. Allen, an instructor at Phillips Academy in Andover, in which Mr. Allen, among other things, accused Mr. Cole of having secured permits of reduced rates for students and friends from the Boston & Maine.

The charges were called to the attention of District Attorney Peters by prominent Andover residents and several weeks ago he announced that he would place the evidence before the Grand Jury.

The girl witnesses passed their time while waiting to testify by listening to the evidence in an interesting criminal case being tried in the Essex County Superior Court.

President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston & Maine Railroad, who is to be one of the principal witnesses, reached the court house at 11 o'clock and went to the district attorney's office to await an interview with Mr. Peters.

DYSPEPSIA-PROOF

How Any Meal Can Be Thoroughly Enjoyed by Any Stomach.

Men, as a rule, are first discovered by their enemies. Their antagonists turn on the searchlight, and the proof of merit will lie in being able to stand the flash.

It was only in this way that Mr. White ever knew that dyspepsia was one of Mr. Black's worst enemies. Sitting face to face at a two-by-four table, he handed his afflicted friend the bill of fare:

Oyster Cocktail, Stuffed Olives,
Boston Clam Chowder,
Strained Gumbo,
Sirloin Steak with Mushrooms,
Roast Beef Hash,
Boiled Ox Tongue with Sauerkraut,
Lobster a la Newburg,
Baked Pork and Beans,
Combination Crab Salad,
Hot Mince Pie,
Pineapple Fritters.

Mr. White ordered a "little of each." Mr. Dyspepsia Black ordered crackers and a glass of milk. "I had such a big breakfast this morning," he said, "that I'll just take a bite to keep you company." But Mr. White could not be deceived: "I am afraid you can't stand the gleam, Mr. Black. Why don't you say you have dyspepsia and be done with it? You'll always have that hungry look, anyhow, as long as you have dyspepsia. Now listen. My stomach was in just as bad condition as yours at one time. But now I can eat anything, at any time. For instance, this clam chowder or sirloin steak or even the lobster would be just as welcome to my stomach as your crackers and milk. You don't realize how this dyspepsia business is robbing you of your spirit, of your energy and ability to think quickly. I can't help notice it. You haven't the cheer and sociability you had three months ago. Now I'll tell you what to do," and thereat the cheerful Mr. White took a vial from his pocket and extracted a wee tablet. "There, there is a tablet that contains an ingredient, one grain of which digests 3,000 grains of food. For even the worst dyspeptic it's the only thing that really gives relief. The reason is it relieves the stomach of nearly all the work it has to do, digests everything in the stomach and stimulates the gastric juice. I can't get along without them. They are Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You can get them anywhere on earth for 50c. a package."

Yes, it is true, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets absolutely stop heartburn, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia of the worst type, sour stomach, bloaty feeling and all eructations and irritation, and freshen and invigorate the stomach. They cheer you up, and make you get all the good there is in your food. You will forget you ever had a stomach to worry you.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

CHINESE WITNESS TELLS OF HIGHBINDER CRIMES

Stooping occasionally to carefully scrutinize the ten Chinese on trial in the Superior Court for shooting down in Oxford place last August four of their countrymen, who were members of the powerful Hep Sing Tong, Charlie Jung told vividly to-day the details of the crime.

Jung apparently knew every one of the prisoners intimately, and when he pointed at one and said, "I saw him shoot," there was an air of uneasiness among the accused men, and they darted looks at him which said more than words.

Jung was on the stand yesterday afternoon when court adjourned, and to-day he was recalled.

He minutely described the formation of the Highbinder squad in Chinatown through Moy Auk, the official interpreter, and he was able to name the Chinese who fired the first shots into the Oxford place doorway in which three of the Hep Sing Tong victims were killed.

Firecrackers Signal.

"I saw the gang of ten murderers when they came into Chinatown," said Jung, "and saw them divide into three groups. One or two of the gun men went to the north end of Oxford place, three remained at the corner of Harrison avenue and Oxford place and four or five went to the south end of Oxford place.

The moment they reached their stations I saw Hom Woon light a bundle of firecrackers and toss them into the street, and immediately the shooting began.

Shot With Foot-Long Gun.

"I saw Hom Woon pull a gun about a foot long from under his coat and start shooting into the Oxford place doorway in which a crowd were smoking, chatting and [illegible].

"In this doorway three men were killed.

"I saw Leung [illegible] and Min Sing," he pointed to [illegible] two prisoners and they stood up in [illegible] steel cage, "fire at the same time [illegible] the same doorway.

"When the [illegible] had fired several shots and many [illegible] lying about the doorways dying and [illegible], they ran down the street [illegible] I did not see them any more.

"As soon as [illegible] crackers thrown into the street he Hom Woon began exploding I saw Wong [illegible]" he pointed out the prisoner of that name, "fire from the North end of Oxford place. Another man fired from there [illegible] I cannot pick him out."

Bar Interpreter.

"[illegible] Charlie Yick, who was shot in the [illegible] and who has since recovered. [illegible] I heard thirty or forty shots."

Before Jung [illegible] the stand General Bartlett, for the defence, objected to the presence of Jun [illegible] and he and another Chinaman [illegible] from the court room.

"Gun is too [illegible] interested in this affair to be in the [illegible]," declared General Bartlett.

Assistant District Attorney Dwyer explained that [illegible] had been used by the government [illegible] interpreter, but that he had not taken [illegible] in the preparation of the case against the accused men, and then he agreed that it would be wise to exclude [illegible].

During the rest of the trial Chinese spectators will be [illegible] from the court.

HELD IN $5,000 IN AUTO DEATH

Pleading not guilty to the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of five-year-old Vera L. Roberts of Salem, Eugene D. Libby, a chauffeur, residing in Mattapan, and employed by Edward L. Hurd of Milton, was held in $5,000 bonds and the case continued two weeks by Judge George D. Sears in the Salem District Court to-day. An inquest will be held. Bond was furnished Libby by the wife of his employer, Mrs. Hurd.

BIG BROCKTON SICK BENEFITS

BROCKTON, Jan. 22.—According to the financial report of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, which has just been submitted, this city has received nearly one-third of the total amount of money paid out by that organization for sick and death benefit funds during the past year.

The total amount paid out was $98,202.42 and $29,788.03 came to this city. This sum is far in excess of previous years and the amount paid out to this city is somewhat notable when it is known that the territory covered by the union includes all parts of the United States and Canada.

The stitcher's union received the largest amount of money of any local in the country, $10,542.85 being paid out to the members of that local or their beneficiaries.

MORAN BETTER, SAY HOSPITAL PHYSICIANS

District Attorney Slowly Improving Under Rest Cure in Back Bay Institution.

District Attorney John B. Moran, who is ill in a Back Bay hospital, is reported better to-day at the institution.

"Mr. Moran," it was stated to a BOSTON AMERICAN [illegible] there to-day, "is improving [illegible]. He is a little better to-day than he was yesterday."

One of the physicians who is attending him said he [illegible] the district attorney's health.

"Mr. Moran has been in the hospital for about a week and is getting better. I expect that he will [illegible] well enough in two or three weeks to go South, as he had planned. How long he will remain there I do not know. He had been under such tremendous strain for many months past because of official work that he is in need of a complete rest. He is gaining [illegible] now and we expect that when he gets back to work he will be in good shape."

Dr. [illegible] of No. 76 Commonwealth avenue has been treating Mr. Moran for throat trouble for a long time and [illegible] of the District Attorney's condition. The throat trouble attacked Mr. Moran [illegible] the close of his campaign for Governor in the Autumn of 1906. Since then his voice has been so husky that at times he could hardly speak above a whisper.

PARKER, LIPTON'S SKIPPER, IS DEAD

SOUTHAMPTON, Jan. 22.—Captain Benjamin Parker, one of the best known yachting skippers of the present generation, is dead.

Captain Parker for many years sailed the German Emperor's yacht Meteor. In 1899 he was engaged by Sir Thomas Lipton to take charge of Shamrock I., and subsequently of Shamrock II., in the America's cup contests.

LANDLORDS BEGIN WORK OF EVICTION

The landlords have assumed the aggressive in the Boston rent strike, and scores of notices of dispossession have been served on tenants who have refused to pay the rent unless a reduction is made. In many instances rents have been deliberately increased, and the poorest have been picked out as the victims of the landlords' retaliation.

Pathetic cases have been reported at the headquarters of the Anti-High Rent League. Some of the tenants were notified to vacate the premises they occupy immediately after they have paid the amount due at a time when they were left practically penniless. Others were given no time to quit without even the formality of an explanation. Still others find themselves facing eviction, while members of their families are seriously ill.

"We will have the canvassers who incite our tenants to strike arrested," assert the members of the West End Improvement Association, "and we have assurances that an injunction will be granted to stop the activity of the Anti-High Rent League."

With evictions staring them in their faces, the rent strikers remain firm, and scores continue to enroll as members of the league.

POLICE SEEK 2 THUGS WHO BEAT OFFICER

To-day the police of Boston are making united effort to discover the identity of two men, who late last night waylaid and assaulted Patrolman Hayes of the Jamaica station on his way to report for duty. The patrolman was knocked down by several blows on the head. He is the third Boston officer to be attacked by thugs within a few days, one attack having resulted in the death of Patrolman Lynch of the Boston force.

Last night Patrolman Hayes, although dazed by the blows rained upon him, gave chase to his assailants until he became too weak from loss of blood. The cause of the assault is a mystery. Hayes carried a gold watch and considerable money but no attempt was made to rob him. He is suffering from a bad wound on his scalp and many bruises about his head and body. He is at his home, No. 3 Kingsbury street, Roxbury.

STOP WASTE OF STATE'S MONEY, SAY EXPERTS

Declare System of Accounting Admits Possibility of Dishonesty.

BATTLE IN LEGISLATURE

The money of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts [illegible] wasted, according to the report made by the [illegible] Audit Company, which applied a probe to the State finances under the authority of the Legislative Recess Committee. The report gives basis for charges which are expected to cause a battle in the present session of the General Court.

State financial experts already are savagely attacking the audit company in reply and the company has friends in the Legislature who are likely to pound back with scathing charges.

In its report the audit company says that the system of accounting in some State institutions admits of the possibility of dishonesty.

It says that there might be high prices paid and waste in the buying of supplies because there is no supervision of purchases.

It says the [illegible] to keep a classified record of purchases is bad. It says in effect that the [illegible] ought to be carefully watched and advantage taken of low rates in market prices.

Say Records Confused.

The report says there has been laxity in keeping vouchers. It criticises ledger accounts.

The auditing experts say that they found records of expenditures so hopelessly confused that they were puzzled.

The company experts recommend:

The creation of a State comptroller of finance.

A system of uniform accounting.

A valuation of the entire property of the State.

Reorganization of the system of accounting and making returns to the State treasurer in the case of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The report has caused a sensation at the State House, where members of the Legislature are giving attention to the financial condition of the city of Boston and the best remedy. Now that charges of extravagance in State finances are under discussion and some of the Boston members of the General Court say the Commonwealth's affairs also need a close investigation.

Record State Tax.

Representative Robert Luce, chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means, says that the State's tax this year is likely to be the highest on record. In 1897 it amounted to $1,750,000 and in eleven years jumped to $4,500,000.

The audit company's report was made to Representative Joseph Walker of Brookline, House chairman, and Senator Elmer Stevens, Senate chairman, of the Recess Committee.

It is said that Senator Stevens is preparing a reply to the report to show that some of its statements are unjustified by facts.

FACES WOMAN SHE ACCUSES OF ALIENATION

Mrs. Hoxie's Attorneys Present Her Charges Against Mrs. Walker in $50,000 Suit.

JURY IS QUICKLY PICKED

EXETER, N. H., Jan. 22.—Two beautiful society women of the old city of Portsmouth began today a legal battle before Judge Robert G. Pike and a Rockingham county jury, which promises to be most exciting and startling. Mrs. Mary F. Walker, the widow of a millionaire who died within a year, is being sued by Mrs. Abbie T. Hoxie for $50,000, and the plaintiff alleges that her grounds for the action is the loss of the love of her husband, Joseph T. Hoxie.

Mrs. Hoxie claims that Mrs. Walker won Mr. Hoxie's heart away. She asks the court to award her a fortune as recompense for the chilling of the affections of the man she married seventeen years ago.

For fifteen years, her counsel claim, her married life was happy and her husband was tender, true and devoted. Then he kept away from home for six long weeks and never gave her any explanation.

"Stayed Away Nights."

He broke, she says, from his fireside habits and began to stay out until long after midnight. Sometimes he did not get home until 3 a. m. Meanwhile, Mrs. Hoxie says, she suffered all the anguish that can afflict the neglected heart of a loving wife.

The case has inspired extraordinary attention all over New Hampshire, and the attorneys rank among the best legal talent in the State.

In court here today to urge the claim of rMs. Hoxie for $50,000 damages appeared Samuel W. Emery, Jr., and Henry F. Hollis. Surrounding Mrs. Walker, who was dressed with a widow's veil and other mourning garments, were Calvin Page, John H. Bartlett, Edwin G. Eastman, Attorney General of New Hampshire; John Scammon and William E. Marvin.

Plaintiff and defendant were the center of interest in the courtroom. Mrs. Hoxie was dressed in a tasteful brown gown of the most modish cut and hue. Liwe the woman she accuses of winning her husband's heart away, she is a brunette. Both women are handsome and look about thirty-five years old.

Jury Chosen.

The jury is Albert J. Herrick, foreman, and Burton S. McDuffee, John E. Axford, George C. Prescott, Frank M. McGregor, James Smith, Bennie A. Swain, Frank W. Parker, Herman I. Bartlett, George H. Wiley and James H. Tattersall.

The jury was speedily drawn. A few of the panel were excused because of objections made by counsel for either side.

Then Attorney Emery, one of the youngest and most brilliant lawyers in the State, arose to make the opening plea for Mrs. Hoxie.

He drew a picture of the happy married life of Mr. and Mrs. Hoxie from the April day in 1891 when they were married until the Autumn of 1906. When the cloud settled over their home, Mr. Hoxie, so the lawyer told judge and jury, kept away from his hearthstone for six long weeks. When, the attorney said, Mrs. Hoxie finally found him it was in his office. But the wife, her counsel said, had never obtained a satisfactory explanation for his long absence.

Locked from Office.

One rainy December night, her attorney said, she was barred from his office by a locked door. Through the glass she pleaded with him to be allowed to get her umbrella which was within and, when he refused to admit her, threatened to break through the door. "Go as far as you like!" was the husband's reply to this threat, according to the wife's lawyer.

PRINCIPALS IN $50,000 LAWSUIT THAT STIRS NEW HAMPSHIRE

Mrs. Joseph E. Hoxie, the woman pictured standing, the wife of a house painter (the man in the group), sues Mrs. Mary Walker, widow of one of the biggest coal shippers of New Hampshire (the third portrait), for $50,000 for alleged alienation of affections. The suit, trial of which is to-day, has stirred the State. Some of the best-known men in New Hampshire are attorneys in the case.

'SHARK' RETURNS FINES WHEN VICTIM REVOLTS

INGENIOUS SYSTEM BLEEDS BORROWER UNDER NAME OF "LIQUIDATED DAMAGES."

Among the great army of Boston working people who have been for years in the clutches of "money sharks," without any prospect of escape in sight, is John L. O'Brien, a plumber living at No. 244 Gold street, South Boston, who ran against the ingenious "liquidated damage" system of the Bankers' Loan Company.

Mr. O'Brien was fined every week he didn't buy "bank checks" of the Boston Banking Company, an allied concern, and found that more of his money went for liquidated damages than to defray the loan of $47, plus $3 charge for making out the papers, or $50.

He paid $26.20 on the principal and $36.35 for damages, but was still met with a claim for $43.85 (principal and interest) and $5 for attorney's fee.

Told He Paid Enough.

Mr. O'Brien consulted an official of the district-attorney's office, who told him he had paid enough. After he had placed his account for settlement in the hands of Attorney George W. Reed, the Bankers Loan Company offered to credit all of the $36.35 paid for liquidated damages to reduce the balance due on the principal and interest, which reduces the debt to a little more than $12.

The O'Briens had given a chattel mortgage on their furniture to secure the debt, and feared that foreclosure would result. The loan was made in December, 1904.

Th liquidated damage system of the Bankers' Loan Company, which is patented, is being frequently attacked in the courts. The borrower has to sign an agreement to buy a certain amount of checks good for provisions at stores every week. If he does not take the coupons he is fined.

Up to about a year ago borrowers were allowed to sign agreements to buy checks in some cases representing more than their weekly pay. It was generally impossible to live up to the contract, and the weekly fines in a few months would aggregate several times the principal, the debtor being barely able to keep up the fines and could not meet the interest or principal requirements.

Methods Changed Under Fire.

Under fire of the District Attorney's office, the Legal Aid Society and a woman's organization, the loan company "changed its method," but complaints against it continue to accumulate. The interest charged is supposed to be but 6 per cent., but the liquidated damages have been considered by many lawyers only a ruse to charge far more than the legal rates.

The following is one of the letters received at this office to-day from a woman who has been in the grip of "money sharks":

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am heartily glad to see the good work you are doing to help victims of the "money sharks."

I would like to ask you if I borrow money of a loan company and give a note which comes due in two months, can the broker attach my wages before maturity?

When I have not been able to make a weekly payment they demand $1.25 as a fine.

Refused to Accept Interest.

Another time (I have only dealt with two companies, thank God), I took a loan of $10 on a note made out for $12.24. The day before it was due I went to pay the interest, which they wouldn't accept without the principal.

(Signed), A WOMAN VICTIM.

If the borrower defaults in payments, a broker holding an assignment of wages may file the assignment with employer. No fine is allowed for non-payment. Some concerns bleed the borrower by demands for attorney's fees, etc., when there is no occasion for any such charge. These are among the ruses to charge more interest by indirect methods than the laws and police rules allow. The borrower may recover any over-charges with twice the legal costs in such cases.

BOARD OF HEALTH UNDER FINANCE COMMISSION FIRE

The Finance Commission reports to Mayor Hibbard that the Board of Health is a compound of efficiency and the reverse.

Politics is the cause of its inefficiency.

Dr. Samuel H. Durgin, chairman, is praised. Commissioner Michael W. Norris and William H. Hayes "have done their duty according to their lights, except when political necessity has dictated a different course." Both owe their appointments to political influence. Norris and Hayes voted to appoint two assistant commissioners and a secretary to please Mayor Fitzgerald, although personally opposed to it.

The board kept in office a smoke inspector at the dictation of Mayor Fitzgerald, although he was declared superfluous and incompetent.

Waste of $11,600 a Year.

Despite the protests of the board, Mayor Fitzgerald created the office of dermatologist at a salary of $4,000.

These appointments caused an unnecessary expense of more than $11,600 a year.

Chairman Durgin termed one of the officials forced upon his department an "excrescence."

Some of the recommendations and charges in the report are:

Ten sanitary inspectors declared to be incompetent by members of the board, but not one removed throughout the past year.

Two of the three collectors of milk samples declared to be incompetent. Still retained, although public health, especially that of infants, depends largely upon their work.

Politics responsible for the purchase of unnecessary supplies.

Junkets for Politicians.

Board pays fancy prices for food for a junket on city harbor boat for Mayor Fitzgerald's friends.

Bureau of inspection of milk and vinegar praised for systematic prosecution of dishonest milk dealers.

Bacteriological laboratory appears to be very well conducted.

Contracts for repair work seldom open to competition. Political favorites got them. Result was costly to the city. City has paid 54 per cent. above a fair price.

Boat "Vigilant," bought by the city for $17,500, and has since cost $37,284 for repairs.

Board of Health's expenses for current year will be about $244,000, or about $30,000 more than average cost of three preceding years.

Most of the excess due to padding of the payrolls. Many of the thirty medical inspectors of schools appointed within a year are declared incompetent.

One convicted of violating the scarlet fever notification law in case of one of his own patients. Charged the patient $13 for two visits. Ten families exposed to contagion by this medical inspector's conduct.

System for Contracts.

Recommends a competitive system for awarding Board of Health contracts.

Effective check in the purchase of supplies.

No payment by the board for food for junketers who use the Vigilant.

The secretary, the additional medical officers, incompetent sanitary and milk inspectors, should be removed.

Number of sanitary inspectors should be increased to twenty-one. The minimum pay should be $1,000 a year.

Places of assistant commissioners removed by Mayor Hibbard not to be filled. Act authorizing such appointments should be repealed.

The dermatologist, a specialist of high repute, but demands upon him by city's work do not justify more than $2,500 as a municipal salary for such an official.

In reorganizing the department the salaries should be adjusted on a more equitable basis.

Finance Commission thinks the execution of its recommendations will save the city $20,000 a year.

Possession of 'bob' veal, tainted meat or any unwholesome food by a dealer should be enough evidence to convict.

Board of Health should have authority to inspect offices of certain advertising physicians.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient or physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable cures in the most distressing cases.

Symptoms of Kidney Trouble.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but if you are obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, headache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, poor digestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, lumbago, bloating, irritability, worn-out feeling, lack of ambition, may be loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease may be stealing upon you, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Swamp-Root Is Pleasant to Take.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., which you will find on every bottle.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best.

Swamp-Root is always kept up to its high standard of purity and excellence. A sworn certificate of purity with every bottle.

SAMPLE BOTTLE FREE—To prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands of letters received from men and women who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy they needed. The value of Swamp-Root is so well known that you are advised to send for a sample bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the Boston Daily American.

Officers Plan Big Affair In Postal Clerks' Reunion

From present indications the sixteenth annual reunion of the Boston Postoffice Clerks' Mutual Benefit Association in Mechanics' Hall, next Tuesday, will be the most successful in the history of the organization.

Profiting by the experience of former years, members of the committee feel confident of looking after the comfort of the guests in a most successful manner. The largest gathering that ever attended this event will be present, judging by the sale of tickets.

Mayor Hibbard, who was always the special guest of the Association at this festivity, while postmaster, will grace the occasion. Postmaster Mansfield will be present. President W. H. Driscoll and a corps of assistants are pushing the arrangements for the affair. A committee of two hundred members are assisting President Driscoll, with T. J. Comerford, secretary; D. J. Driscoll, treasurer; Joseph A. Lyons, chairman of the reception committee, and T. Connorton, floor director.

CLOTHING FIRM HAS ASSIGNED

The clothing firm of Rogers & Co., in business at No. 381 Wasdington street, have assigned for the benefit of their creditors. The liabilities are placed at about $45,000. The stock on hand is valued by the members of the firm at $75,000. Joseph A. Klotz of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been placed in charge of the concern as assignee.

A meeting of the creditors will be held next week to decide what to do with the stock on hand. The present unseasonable weather, causing a falling off in the demand for clothing, is given as the cause of the suspension of the firm.

K. OF C. PUTS 12,000 TICKETS FOR BIG SHOW

Boston Chapter, K. of C., has distributed an initial batch of 12,000 tickets for the production of the comic opera, "The Mirrors of Time," which will be presented under the auspices of the chapter during the week of February 17 at Jordan Hall. A special matinee will take place Saturday afternoon, Washington's birthday, the last day of the show.

The ticket committee has completed plans for the sale of tickets. James A. McMurry, secretary of the chapter and also secretary of the Committee of Arrangements, will have charge of the systematic plan of covering the Boston district, so that all who desire may obtain tickets. He has obtained orders for a great number of tickets from the different councils in Boston Chapter and also from neighboring Massachusetts cities and towns.

The following members of Boston Chapter make up the ticket committee:

James A. McMurry, Charles F. Lyons, Frank Ferguson, M. Joseph O'Donnell, Victor Espinola, J. L. Leary, James Hurley, Peter J. Cahill, William H. Sullivan, John B. Fitzpatrick, Jr.; James F. Mahoney, John F. Mongovan, William J. Leonard, Daniel Brodie, Thomas A. Monahan, George Evans, Andrew M. Lanigan, James T. Manning, James T. Phelan, John F. Elder, Daniel J. Kane.

TRADERS' BANK OF PITTSBURG CLOSED

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 22.—The Traders and Merchants' Bank, a State institution, was closed to-day by order of the State bank examiner. The institution has a paid up capital of $100,000, and its deposits are estimated at $360,000.

BOY PLAYED MARBLES IN CHURCH; FINED

Because he disturbed a religious meeting and loitered on the sidewalk in front of the building, John F. Rose, seventeen years of age, of No. 10A Greenwood road, Somerville, was fined $15 on the first charge and $3 on the second by Judge Wentworth in the Somerville District Court to-day.

Ross last evening with a companion visited the Holiness Church at No. 54 Broadway, Somerville. They entered the church at about 8.30. Soon the young men began to roll and toss marbles around and then peanuts. Then they started to talk and laugh and became, it is alleged, very annoying.

Policeman Fuller was called, and he took fictitious names they gave and cautioned them. Then the youths left the church, but Ross continued to hang around, and the policeman arrested him on charge of loitering. To-day George C. Bunker of the Holiness Church preferred the more serious charge.

RICH TAUNTON MAN'S WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE

TAUNTON, Jan. 22.—Rosena Ellmore Ormsbee, wife of Elbert A. Ormsbee, treasurer of the taunton Pearl Works, well known motor boat racing enthusiast and reported to be worth a fortune, has brought suit for divorce, charging non-support. The Ormsbees were married in 1883 and have two children, Willard A. and Edna C. A. Ormsbee.

We must all use laxatives —we who eat rich foods and exercise too little. The best way to take them is a Cascaret at a time—when you need it.

You know when you need Cascarets.

You feel a certain dullness, a depression—perhaps the approach of a headache.

You say, "I must take something tonight." But why do you waste the day?

It is easy to keep at your best at all times, if you'll do it.

The way is to carry a box of Cascarets with you. Take one just as soon as you need it.

Then the clouds rise at once.

The need for Cascarets is a natural need. Don't think that you are drugging yourself.

We must get a laxative some way. If we don't get it through exercise, and through proper food, we must get it otherwise.

Cascarets are the next best way.

Ask your Doctor about it.

He will tell you that the day of the violent purgative is past. The day of pills, salts, castor oil and cathartics.

This is the day of the gentle in medicine, the natural, the pleasant.

Cascarets act just as certain foods act—just as exercise acts—on the bowels.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50 cents, 25 cents and

A Reliable Remedy for the Whiskey and Beer Habit

Very few men become drunkards because they like liquor. It is frequently the moderate drinker, who, before he realizes his condition, has become a drunkard. The nervous system, having become accustomed to stimulants, is unable to do the same amount or quality of work without liquor, hence the victim drinks more and more. This is a state of disease and should be treated by Orrine. It destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink is not missed. There is no loss of time or detention from work when it is used.

Orrine is prepared in two forms—No. 1, the secret remedy, which can be used in food or drink without the knowledge of the patient; No. 2, for those who take the remedy of their own free will. Both forms are guaranteed. A registered guarantee in every box.

Treatise on how to cure drunkenness free on request. The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C. The price of either form is $1.00 a box, making the cost of the complete cure less than one-tenth what it is usually charged at sanitariums, with a guarantee that the expense will be nothing unless a cure is gained. Mail orders filled in plain sealed package on receipt of price.

Orrine is for sale by Jaynes' Five Drug Stores, Boston.

MRS. GEORGE GOULD IN BALLROOM PLAY, WITH BELLEW

MRS. GEORGE GOULD AGAIN AN ACTRESS

Smart Set Greet Her in Divorce Comedy at Big New York Fete.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Frederick Townsend Martin set a new mark for society bachelors when he starred Mrs. George Jay Gould in "Mrs. Van Vechten's Divorce Dance," a play in one act at the Plazza Hotel.

Such an outpouring of real society New York has never seen before at an afternoon reception. The "four hundred" was easily swelled into six hundred, and the capacity of the big ballroom of the Plazza was taxed to the utmost.

From 4 o'clock until near 5 a continual stream of carriages and automobiles drove to the big hotel. The main entrance, on Fifty-ninth street, with its outriders of mounted police, its inner guard of patrolmen and footmen in the hotel livery, resembled one of the big opera houses on opening night. At the entrance to the grand ball room on the second floor, the guests were received by Mr. Martin, who came from England a month earlier than usual this Winter to prepare for the play, which Mrs. Gould and he planned last Summer in Europe.

Stage Details Complete.

The big white and gold room had been fitted with a miniature stage complete in every detail, even to proscenium curtains and electric footlights. The circle of boxes in the gallery and every chair on the ballroom floor were filled long before the curtain hour. Nearly every family of the social elect of the city was represented. A hundred who came late did not grumble at having to stand through the performance.

At 5 o'clock the curtains of the miniature stage were pulled aside by George Jay Gould, Jr., and Arthur Hamilton, dressed as pages in rich colonial costume.

Mrs. Francis L. Pruyn of Albany, who was to have made a professional debut this Winter with Mrs. Clara Bloodgood in "Truth" and who took the part of Mrs. Van Vechten's maid, prepared the stage for the coming of her mistress.

Mrs. Gould's entrance called for continued applause, especially from old friends who remembered her acting when she was Miss Edith Kingdon. She was gowned for the "Divorce Case" in a pearl gray satin creation, which was heavily trimmed in pearls. Kyrle Bellew played opposite Mrs. Gould.

Divorce Epigrams.

The theme of the play—which was by Edward Van Zile and selected from nineteen manuscripts written for Mr. Martin—was not unfamiliar to society. Each sally at Sioux Falls, every divorce epigram brought a ripple of applause.

Early in the act the maid brought in a note.

"From Freddy Martin," exclaimed Mrs. Gould, after opening it. "I wonder what he wants now?"

The audience laughed at every line of the note. He had written, it seemed, to thank Mrs. Van Vechten for coming to his tea. He declared that he simply could not go to sleep until he had thanked her. He assured him that though he had passed from "the careless and happy age into a hairless and catty stage," he would still endeavor to do his best as a host and a society man. The note was signed, "Your devoted Freddy," and pleased the throng more than any incident regularly in the manuscript.

Then Mrs. Gould found this postscript to the note: "Don't drop this in the Plaza."

"You may be sure I won't, Freddy," Mrs. Gould said. "You and the waste paper basket are almost related."

Kyrle Bellew, as Mr. Van Vechten, was professionally at home. Miss Ethel Barrymore and Miss Margaret Illington were not quite lost in the society crush, and led the applause for him. Mmes. Eames and Sembrich were among the opera stars who saw the play.

Mrs. Elinor Glyn held a little reception of her own in one of the reception rooms.

MITCHELL ASKS MINERS TO AID WIFE AND SONS

In Tears and on Verge of Collapse as He Refuses Purse of $2,700.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 22.—Perhaps the most eloquent speech President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America, ever made was delivered before the national convention, when he declined to accept a personal gift of $2,700 tendered him by the miners of Montana and Wyoming as a token of their appreciation of his efforts to make their condition better. As he spoke tears came to his eyes.

"Give it to Mrs. Mitchell and the children," he said, trembling with emotion. Big, hardy miners shed tears with him.

Thomas Gibson, president of the Montana miners, had come to the platform carrying a draft for $2,300. He said the draft was backed by a smaller amount, which would bring the total up to $2,700.

"We do not come with a loving cup," he said, "but we feel it is our duty to give some testimony of our appreciation of what President Mitchell has done for us."

Mitchell arose. As he spoke he seemed ready to break down.

"I prefer that you take the money back, but if you cannot do that without danger of giving offence to the good people who sent it to me, then send it to Mrs. Mitchell and let her use it to educate our boys."

The draft will be sent to Mrs. Mitchell.

THREAT TO CALL OUT ALL TEAMS IN SHOE CITY

Brockton Coal Drivers Plan New Move to End Three Weeks' Strike.

BROCKTON, Jan. 22.—Sensational developments are promised in the coal teamsters' strike, and before the end of the week, unless plans fail, a general order will be issued calling out all the teamsters in the city.

The Teamsters' Union here is one of the strongest in the country and has a membership close to half a thousand men.

At the meetings of the various branches of the union since the strike started three weeks ago the action of the coal drivers has been approved and it was even intimated that some branches of the crafts showed a tendency to become involved.

Should such a course as ordering a general strike prevail the city will witness one of the worst strike situations in its history.

Lawrence Grace, business agent of the Coal Teamsters' Union of Providence, and president of the joint council, also of that city, address the teamsters to-night. At a meeting of those bodies in Providence they heartily indorsed the strike and voted every means of support to the strikers in this city.

Another conspicuous figure in organized labor, Joseph Forkey, the third vice president of the International Teamsters' Union, will also visit this city, making a special trip from New York to look over the situation. A conference will then be held at which the calling of a general strike will be discussed.

The police have had several calls to disperse the crowds that gathered around the teams now delivering coal but outside of the Tupper case nothing serious developed.

LLOYD'S EYEGLASSES AND SPECTACLES

How many people realize how completely they are in the hands of the optician when they buy glasses? How many have paid for gold and got "gold-filled" glasses?

How a Spinster Resolved to Get Married and the Fate of Those Whom She Sought Out

Leap Year Confessions of an Old Maid

By Arletta Canfield

CHAPTER III

WHO says I'm unlucky? You know the old saying, "[illegible]" Well, I never could play [illegible]. If I [illegible] the deuce I [illegible] would grow [illegible] before I had time to play "low." Was the saying [illegible] true in my case? Judge for yourself.

It happened [illegible] that invitation to dine [illegible] at the Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. Van Alstyne were entertaining for a few days a friend from out of town.

The Van Alstynes [illegible] a year ago and were married in spite of paterfamilias and all the other familiases. They haven't yet got beyond the hand-holding stage, and dislike very much the butter-in. Hence their anxiety to [illegible] me. I was to entertain the friend while they did the [illegible] act.

Now for "Sporty" Man

Things couldn't have been better arranged. From the first "Allow me to present——" of Van, Jerry McLaughlin was my prey. I remembered hearing of him as "sporty." He had [illegible] weight and had become possessed of a likely string of racing stock.

This time there should be no [illegible]. I would talk horsy or in fight-fan language, although I didn't know a [illegible] from a claret lemonade. I would rush him until I had him hanging over the ropes before the tap of the bell, whatever that means.

He was big and dark and stuck his chin out when he talked. I followed "Brer" Rabbit's policy and "lay low" until he ran up his flag.

"Well, Van," was his greeting as he strode up to the table which we had secured, "I just cashed in on Temacco for ten thousand."

Just Dotes on Horses

Glory be! I was saved. For had I not accidentally heard Bert telling Bella that Temacco had won the New Year's Handicap? From that minute my heart was wrapped up in Temacco and his kind. I just doted on horses and said so.

The trifle of the ten thousand, of course, was not considered. I was used to millions a day and he could see it. I asked him to explain to me just what a handicap was, and caught myself barely in time to keep adding a query as to how it was won.

When he told me that a handicap was a race where the stewards doped 'them' out the field, and the horses backed by the wise money had to give weight to the maidens—well, I leave it to your imagination.

I saw that it was up to me to wind him up and let him do the talking until I could acquire wisdom in the vernacular. So I did. Whenever he stopped to take a bite I got in some kind of a silly question. His meat got cold and the sherbet warm. He didn't mind, for he had a rapt audience.

By the time we came to dessert I was regularly enrolled as a pupil in Jerry's academy. His clothes? Well, would you believe it? They were much like other men's except that they were a little better cut and more immaculate. Checks? And jewelry? Guess he left them for the comic paper artists. Anyway, you know I'd never consent to trot through life hitched up with a pinto, don't you?

Van drove us home in his car, Mrs. V. in front with him and Jerry left to me in the tonneau. I just snuggled up in the robes and showed how much I liked being under the protection of a "big, manly fellow like him." Tell him so? Well, not in words. What's the use, when looks and acts can speak in tones of thunder?

Heigho, an Invitation

A turn through the park, a whirl along the boulevard, and we were home. Of course, that wasn't the end of it. How silly of anyone to suppose that I was not equal to so small a thing as that!

I carried with me an invitation for the next morning to [illegible] behind his favorite pair, which were [illegible]. He wanted my opinion on them.

In the morning I studied the sporting page of the papers, and anything that escaped me [illegible] I couldn't [illegible] always.

Also for my information: When I ventured that it was a nice morning he said, "You bet, for a while I thought old Sol was going to get left at the post. Guess we'll [illegible] anyway."

[illegible], etc., and then some more.

Drawing Coils Tighter

Well, we drove, we lunched, we motored, we danced—he danced like a bear. Then we went to theatres and strayed around at receptions where nobody knows anybody and is glad of it.

The more he assumed authority over me and my pleasures the more obedient I became. However, if it had kept up much longer I would have had the look of a grinning idiot. I forgot to think for myself. I referred to him for everything.

You know a sporty man wants his wife to [illegible] when he drives through life. [illegible] after I got him? Time enough to tell that. Only this much is certain, [illegible].

[illegible] I must see to it that the [illegible] in his speech was [illegible]. [illegible] take a leap into the [illegible] and see what [illegible].

I am a pretty good punch [illegible] when it comes to [illegible], and I resolved to put the ball over the plate or take the count. Seems to me that I've mixed my [illegible] of speech a little, but you know what I mean. Association has rendered me almost immune to [illegible] in English slang.

I grew positive he was to leave in a day or two. I sighed whenever he mentioned it. Even that wouldn't go, and I realized that it was up to Bill to dope out something unique. It was hearty laughter and breezy voices for Jerry and I must make good.

I realized that I was up against a [illegible], but—well, I had my system with me—so I thought.

Gets a Sure Tip

You know Bella's brother Frank? He runs with a bunch that, to put it mildly, don't stop to graze until they get to the pasture gate. Now, if I could get a triple-plated tip on a sure winner I was as good as listening to the [illegible], with me playing star role.

I said: "Frank, give me a straight tip on Oakland to-morrow and you win my everlasting gratitude."

"Which is not negotiable," he replied. The scamp! I had to tell him all about it and promise him a thousand off for his very own if I won my man.

It worked. At least the red hot tip over the wires did, and Jerry won another roll. He was just saying: "Little woman, you're a sure winner. By George, if I had you!" when the messenger boy interrupted with a telegram. "Plague take that horse that had to get the bots or something else just then!" With a word making an appointment at eight at Bella's home he left me.

That Terrible Slip

Oh, the agony of it! How can I tell you about it? How could I know that in his haste to have the fateful words off his mind he should come at seven forty-five and that I should not hear his ring. In a few minutes as I strayed down the hall fresh from the hands of a maid I encountered the incorrigible Frank.

"Hello, Bill!" he shouted, so he could have been heard a mile. "Got him roped yet? I tell you, Jerry is a mustang and you've got to be wary. Don't forget when you get him hobbled so he can't get away that you promised me a thou for giving you the Oakland tip."

Then I started to tell him just how far Jerry had gone and of the proposal which I knew would come to-night, when out walked Mr. Jerry from the parlor and, with an apology for unintentionally hearing our conversation, took his hat and coat and—well, I guess he's going yet, from the looks of his get-away.

You might think I am discouraged. But I'm not. Here's better luck next time. Will I tell you all about it? Well, Bill never goes back on a friend.

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

SWOLLEN EYELIDS

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me something good for swollen eyelids. Mine are very thick and [illegible], and I would like to have them [illegible]. A. B.

THE swollen eyelids are doubtless caused by some derangement of the circulation which must be [illegible] by a physician. For temporary relief use diluted witch hazel as is often advised in this column.

PIMPLES AND OILY FACE

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I am seventeen years of age and have had pimples for a year, and they left marks on my face. [illegible] a remedy to remove the marks, also a remedy for greasy face? RUTH M.

BATHE the spots in hot water two or three times a day, and see if that will not cause them to disappear. I presume that you have cured the pimples as you do not ask for help with them. For the greasy face [illegible] in the water with which you wash the face. Alcohol is very good also and should be rubbed on by means of a soft sponge or rag which has been moistened with alcohol.

DIMPLES AND WRINKLES

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I have round dimples in my cheeks, but they seem to be disappearing. Kindly tell me of something else that will replace them. HOPEFUL.

THAT is the fate of dimples. They degenerate into wrinkles as time takes the flesh [illegible]. There is no way to keep them unless you can keep the flesh as firm as in youth. Benzoin, a few drops in the water with which you wash the face, will help to keep flesh firm. Alcohol is also good. Wipe the face with a cloth wet with the latter. It is cleansing as well. Avoid the use of soapy water on the face and keep your digestive apparatus in excellent condition. I cannot answer your second question in this column.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS
IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

JAMES A. HOUSTON CO. will put on sale for $8 for one day a lot of women's coats made of English coverts in a variety of colorings that have sold for $12.50. They are made with box backs, deep, mannish pockets, and turned back cuffs and will be found to be of excellent quality.

A. SHUMAN & CO. WILL HAVE a bargain in black mohair waists for 95 cents. They are made with buttoned backs, long sleeves and tucked front and back and are a regular $2 value. These are practical waists and fit well.

WOLF'S, "MY CLOTHIER," have reduced a small lot of children's coats from $7.75 to $4.98 that are very good values. They are made in smart little models for the girl from 8 to 14 years, and can be had in brown and blue shades. Some are flannel lined.

AT SHEPARD NORWELL'S you will find a bargain in couch covers that have sold for $4.50 reduced to $2.95. They are sixty inches wide, of heavy Kazak weave, in Oriental designs, with fringed edge, come in rich colorings, and are just the thing for the den.

MacDONNELL'S WILL HAVE a special lot of Saxony flannel waists on sale Thursday, at their Tremont Temple store, that have been reduced from $3.98 to sell for one day for $1.98. They are made of excellent quality in four different color combinations and are genuine bargains.

BUTLER'S WILL SELL FOR 12½ cents for Thursday a broken lot of high, white, embroidered, linen collars that are the regular 25-cent kind. They come in assorted patterns in all sizes and at this low price ought to sell quickly.

SMALL'S WILL PLACE ON sale to-morrow a special sale of broadcloth skirts in black and all colors that have been selling for $6.98, but will be reduced to $4.98 for one day only. They are this season's newest models made with plaits and make a graceful walking skirt.

JORDAN MARSH CO. will offer women's gloves that have been selling for $1 for 69 cents. They are well made, overseam sewn, and have two clasps. They can be had in white, tan, brown and gray in all sizes.

"AN AMBITIOUS MAN"

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

CHAPTER XVIII.—Continued.

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner. Copyright, 1908, by Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

IT was in thoughts like these that Joy relieved her heart of some of the bitterness and sorrow which weighed upon it. And day after day she bore about with her the dread of having the story of her mother become known in her new home.

As our fears, like our wishes, when strong and unremitting, prove to be magnets, the result of Joy's despondent fears [illegible] in the scandal which the Baroness had planted and left to flourish and grow in Beryngford after her departure. An hour before the services began on the day of Preston Cheney's burial, Joy learned at [illegible] time she was to officiate as organist.

A pang of mingled emotions shot through her heart at the sound of his name. She had seen this man but a few times, and spoken with him but once; yet he had left a lasting impression upon her memory.

She had been drawn to him by his sympathetic face and atmosphere, the sorrow of his kind eyes and the keen appreciation of [illegible] in her art; and just in the measure that she had been attracted to him she had been repelled by the three women to whom she was presented at the [illegible].

She saw them all again mentally, as she had seen them on that and many other days. Mrs. Cheney and Alice, with their fretful, plain, dissatisfied faces and their overburdened costumes, and the Baroness, with her cruel heart gazing through her [illegible] of defaced beauty.

She had been conscious of a feeling of overwhelming pity for the kind, attractive man who made the fourth of that quartet. She knew that he had obtained honors and [illegible] from life, but she pitied him for his home environment.

She had felt so thankful for her own happy home life at the time, and she remembered, too, the sweet hope that lay like a closed-up bud in the bottom of her heart that day as the quartet moved away and left her standing alone with Arthur Stuart.

It was only a few weeks later that the end came to all her dreams, through that terrible anonymous letter.

It was the Baroness who had sent it, she knew, the Baroness whose early hatred for her mother had descended to the child. "And now I must sit in the same house with her again," she said, "and perhaps meet her face to face; and she may tell the story here of my mother's fate, even as I have felt and feared it must yet be told. How strange that should inspire so much hatred!"

Surprised!

Joy had carefully refrained from reading New York papers ever since she left the city; and she had no correspondents. It was her wish and desire to utterly sink and forget the past life there.

Therefore she knew nothing of Arthur Stuart's marriage to the daughter of Preston Cheney. She thought of the rector as dead to her. She believed he had given her up because of the stain upon her history, and, bitter as the pain had been, she never blamed him. She had fought with her love for him and believed that it was buried in the grave of all other happy memories.

But as the earth is wrenched open by volcanic eruptions and long buried corpses are revealed again to the light of day, so the unexpected sight of Arthur Stuart, as he took his place beside Mabel and the Baroness during the funeral services, revealed to the pent up passion of her heart to her own frightened soul.

To strong natures, the greater the inward excitement the more quiet the exterior; and Joy passed through the services and performed her duties without betraying to those about her the violent emotions under which she labored.

The rector of Beryngford Church requested her to remain for a few moments and consult with him on a matter concerning the next week's musical services. It was from him she learned the relation which Arthur Stuart bore to the dead man, and that Beryngford was the former home of the Baroness.

Her mother's manuscript had carefully avoided all mention of names of people or places.

Yet Joy realized now that she must be living in the very scenes of her mother's early life; she longed to make inquiries, but was prevented by the fear that she might hear her mother's name mentioned disrespectfully.

The days that followed were full of sharp agony for her. It was not until long afterward that she was able to write her "impressions" of that experience. In the extreme hour of joy or agony we formulate no impressions; we only feel. We neither analyze nor describe our friends or enemies when face to face with them, but after we leave their presence. When the day came that she could write, some of her reflections were thus epitomized:

Rises From Grave

Love which rises from the grave to comfort us, possesses more of the demons' than the angels' power. It terrifies us with its supernatural qualities and deprives us temporarily of our reason.

Suppressed steam and suppressed emotion are dangerous things to deal with.

The accumulated knowledge of ages is something revealed by a kiss. Where wisdom is 'bliss, it is folly to be ignorant.

Some of us have to crucify our hearts before we find our souls.

A woman cannot fully know charity until she has lost love.

To feel temptation and resist it, renders us liberal in our judgment of all our kind. To yield to it, fills us with suspicion of all.

There is an ecstatic note in pain which is never reached in happiness.

The death of a great passion is a terrible thing, unless the dawn of a greater truth shines on the grave.

Love ought to have no past tense.

Love partakes of the feline nature. It has nine lives.

It seems to be difficult for some of us to distinguish between looseness of views and charitable judgments. To be sorry for people's sins and follies and to refuse harsh criticism is right; to accept them as a matter of course is wrong.

Love and sorrow are twins, and knowledge is their nurse.

The pathway of the soul is not a steady ascent, but hilly and broken. We must sometimes go lower, in order to get higher.

That which is to-day, and will be to-morrow, must have been yesterday. I know that I live. I believe that I shall live again, and have lived before.

Earth life is the middle rung of a long ladder which we climb in the dark. Though we cannot see the steps below or above, they exist all the same.

The materialist denying spirit is like the burr of the chestnut denying the meat within.

The inevitable is always right.

Prayer is a skeleton key that opens unexpected doors. We may not find the things we came to seek, but we find other treasures.

The pessimist belongs to God's misfit counter.

To forget benefits we have received is a crime. To remember benefits we have bestowed is a greater one.

To some men a woman is a valuable book, carefully studied and choicely guarded behind glass doors. To others, she is a daily paper, idly scanned and tossed aside.

Save Money, Girls, Even if It Be Only Fifty Cents a Week

By Beatrice Fairfax

GIRLS, it's a long time since we had a talk on the money-saving question.

You have all bought your frills and furbelows, and now is the time to save before the Spring expenses loom in sight. I know it is desperately hard to put the money away in a prosaic old bank when there are so many pretty things just crying out to be bought, but try to be strong and resist the temptations.

Perhaps you have already started your bank acount and it has reached a nice little sum. If you have not, begin to-day.

Every Mite Helps

IF you can manage to save even 50 cents a week it will be better than nothing at all. The small sums grow into large ones if you only keep at them perseveringly.

Save enough to have a little pin money. Then you won't have to go to your husband for every cent you spend.

And if you don't marry, save enough to be an independent, self-reliant, capable spinster.

Don't be foolish and lend your money to some man who tells you that he will double it for you. It is your money; you have made it and you are the one to take care of it.

Remember that every cent saved now means more ease and comfort in your old age.

You can do without many comforts now because you are young and strong and enthusiastic. It is more fun and excitement to spend your money on pleasure.

But the day are coming when you will have to depend on many comforts that you ignore now. Look out for those days now while you are able to provide for them.

Help Men Save

ENCOURAGE your young men friends to save also. You can do a great deal for them if you will try to keep them from being extravagant on your account.

Some girls seem to think that the supreme test of a man's devotion rests on the amount of money he is willing to spend on his sweetheart. In my opinion a man pays a girl a greater compliment when he wants to save for her sake than he does when he squanders money upon her.

When he saves it means that he is anxious to reach a position where he can afford to marry.

When he spends, it simply means that he is generous because he has no special reason to save.

A sensible, prudent girl makes a thrifty wife, and any man of common sense is quick to realize the fact.

So, dear girls, be wise and save your money for your own sake and for the sake of the young men who will be lucky enough some day to win you for helpmates.

Here Is the Winter's Most Striking Gown

ONE of the most subtle, refined and, withal, the most artistic, confections in the matter of gowns that has been conceived this year consists of a plain underdress of liberty satin in a wonderful tone of golden taupe, or grayish beige—like a changing cloud—soft, indefinite and charming.

At the back it is supplemented with a decided train, while above the plain three-inch hem which adorns the bottom of the skirt there runs a double line of fine gold colored soutache, the two rows being placed close together and surmounted by a chain of roses, likewise worked about two and a half inches in diameter.

Over this plain, sleeveless underdress falls a long tunic of fine black chantilly net, showered with tiny ring spots, which is drawn full into the waist and slashed up both back and front.

The tunic boasts a close edging of the golden soutache in the form of a straight line, surmounted with roses running from the shoulder to the hem, both back and front, as well as all round, while soft gleams of the beautiful underdress are seen fitfully through the meshes of the net.

For an entirely one-colored toilette, which is one of the notable exceptions which prove the rule, a daring model in a rich vivid tone of bright [illegible] green has been evolved.

The material chosen is a fine silky tulle illusion mounted over a doublure of soft silk to match, the skirt being treated with light motifs here and there of self-colored bugles, a thick border of the same running round the hem.

The corsage, which is cut in rounded form, is entirely composed of the untrimmed net, outlining the neck, and forming a soft drapery around the shoulders and bust, while the short, scanty sleeves simply consist of a transparent drapery, with little or no fullness.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

OF COURSE IT IS PROPER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

1. Is it proper for a young lady to go to a doctor's or dentist's office alone? 2. Is it proper for a young lady to see her gentlemen friends to the door when leaving? 3. Is it proper for a young lady to help a gentleman on with his overcoat?

M. E. B.

MOST certainly it is proper for a young woman to go alone on a professional visit to a dentist or doctor. It is not customary to see a man to the door after a call, but there is no harm in doing so. There is no necessity for helping a man on with his overcoat, and it is not customary to do so.

THE TROUBLES OF DAISY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl twenty years of age, and dearly love a young man two years my senior. I have been keeping company with him for three years, during which time he has proved to be a perfect gentleman, but still my parents forbid me to have anything to do with him. I have tried to persuade them, but it is of no avail. Now, do you think it would be right for me to marry him, as I do dearly love him and am willing to sacrifice all in this world for him. We have parted several times, thinking it was the best plan, but it seemed impossible for us to remain apart. Also, when a young girl proposes, is it customary for the young man to give her a diamond engagement ring? Also, is November an unlucky month to marry in?

DAISY.

I CANNOT avise any girl to marry contrary to her parents' wishes, for of course I have no right to do so. All I can say to you is be patient and try in every way to prove to your parents the young man's worth. If he is worthy, time cannot help but prove him so. When they see that you are in earnest and will marry no one else, I think they will relent. Girls are not supposed to propose, so I cannot tell you the etiquette in the matter of the ring. All months are equally lucky to marry in.

THAT OF THE GIVEN NAME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Which initial is proper to put on writing paper, handkerchiefs, etc., the initial of the given name or the initial of the surname?

PEARL.

IT is customary to put the initial of the given name, but it is simply a matter of choice. It would be equally proper to put the initial of the surname.

Some Choice Recipes for Cooking Oysters

THE writer of every recipe printed below receives a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Cook Book, a substantial indexed blankbook of 210 pages, bound in heavy oilcloth, especially designed to preserve these recipe gems in permanent form. Address Economy Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

OYSTER SALAD

Put into a saucepan a pint of hot water, two slices of lemon, two cloves, a tablespoon of vinegar and a dash of salt. In this simmer two dozen oysters, not over five minutes. Then remove them, and when cool place them on a bed of lettuce and cover with salad dressing.

MRS. G. M. FOGG.
No. 30 Sewall street, Winter Hill.

OYSTER FRITTERS

Beat one egg until light; add one-half cup of milk, one-half cup of flour, a little salt and one scant teaspoon of baking powder. Put a spoonful of the mixture in a hot buttered frying pan; place a large oyster on top, cover with another spoonful of the batter, and fry until well browned on both sides.

KATHRYN J. SULLIVAN.
No. 5 Grimes street, South Boston.

POACHED OYSTERS

Butter as many scallop shells as there are people to be served. Put in each shell six oysters with their own liquor. Sprinkle with salt, paprika, tomato catsup and a drop or two of tabasco sauce. Put a few bits of butter here and there on the oysters and set the shells in a dripping pan, then into a very hot oven. As soon as the oysters look plump and the edges curl serve.

MISS CORINNE A. TETREAU.
No. 110 Hampshire street, Lawrence.

OYSTER SHORTCAKE

If this is carefully made it is delicious. Make a rich but light flour dough. Bake in layer cake tins; split and lightly butter each as it comes from the oven. Scald the strained liquor from a quart of oysters; rub two tablespoons of butter smooth with two tablespoons of flour and stir into one and one-half cups of scalded milk; cook and stir until it thickens; add a tablespoon of butter to the oyster juice and beat it; season to taste with salt and white or cayenne pepper; add oysters and heat until the gills ruffle. Then lay the oysters on the layers of shortcake; add the liquor to the sauce, and when blended spread over the oysters; then add another layer of cake, then oysters, and pour sauce over the whole. Sprinkle with a little minced parsley and serve very hot. This will cost about fifty cents and will be enough for four grown people.

Mansfield. MRS. E. R. WYNN.

OYSTER CHOWDER

Take one cup of chopped fresh celery, one cup milk, two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons flour, one salt spoon salt and the fleshy part of two and one-half dozen oysters, cut in small pieces. Make a white sauce by cooking the flour and butter together and adding the milk gradually; then add the oysters, salt and cook five minutes. Just before serving add the celery. Serve on thin slices of toast.

FRIED OYSTERS.

Put plenty of butter in a frying pan and let it get real hot before you begin frying. Beat up well as many eggs as you judge you will need. Dip the oysters in egg, one by one, then roll them very lightly in cracker crumbs, then drop them in the hot butter. They will brown nicely before the oysters cook too much.

NO MORE WRINKLES

New Discovery Makes Beauty In a Night.

After beauty doctors, facial massage and cold creams had failed I took out my own wrinkles by a simple home treatment of my own discovery, which brought back my beauty and the freshness of youth. Doctors say: "It is the only treatment in the world that will actually remove wrinkles and make old faces look young and beautiful." Many of my friends look twenty years younger since trying my treatment. I will send further particulars to any one interested in my discovery, absolutely free. TOLSTOI TELLS CZAR HOW TO RULE RUSSIA

GIVE FREEDOM TO ALL, ABOLISH THE ARMY, BUILD EMPIRE ON LOVE, HE SAYS.

> TOLSTOI'S RULES FOR CZAR TO FOLLOW IN RULING RUSSIANS
>
> "1—To follow the example of Christ and become a servant of the nation.
>
> "2—Abolish the army of violence and establish an army of peace and love.
>
> "3—Give the largest freedom to all our country.
>
> "4—Renounce all wealth and luxury, abolish all titles and particular privileges.
>
> "Having done this, you will become one of the greatest rulers of the present time and your name will be blessed and worshipped by millions.
>
> "Very respectfully submitted, "LEO TOLSTOI."

BY COUNTESS N. TOLSTOI.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 22.—Since Count Leo Tolstoi was excommunicated by the Holy Synod of the Russian Greek Church several attempts have been made to secure from the Czar the imperial good offices to bring about a reconciliation between the author and the offended Church. The Czar has had several talks with the Metropolitan Antoni, who has suggested to the Czar to write a personal letter to the Count. The Czar has asked his nephew, the Grand Duke Constantin, a noted poet of the Czars' family and president of various scientific organizations, to write the letter to Count Tolstoi, making such a proposal of reconciliation.

Count Tolstoi has replied to this letter of the Grand Duke, inclosing a special letter to the Czar, the text of this reading as follows:

"Your Majesty: A few more days, weeks or years, and I am gone. Some days or decades more and Your Majesty will follow my example. That is the eternal law of nature. But before that occurs I desire to direct these lines to you as the voice of the Russian people.

"I wish you could follow and realize the words and example of Christ: Whoso will be master shall be a servant of the others. To rule a people or an empire does not mean to govern them by force and violence, but to serve them with wisdom and love, and execute the highest ideals for the benefit of the ruled.

"Neither Parliament nor the constitutional government makes a nation happy, free or advanced, but the ideals for which they strive and the freedom necessary to attain those ideals. If you will be a ruler as described and realized by Christ, your first duty is to build your sovereignty upon the love of peace, liberty and brotherhood. Build your empire upon the religion of humanity and peace, and there will be not necessary either prisons or enormous military expenses. Give freedom to every man to think, worship or speak as he likes, and they will learn to rule themselves with love and wisdom."

"BLACK HAND" AGENTS WRECK THREE HOUSES

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Three destructive bombs have been exploded in separate parts of the city within the last twenty-four hours. They wrecked door fronts and shattered hundreds of panes of glass in Harlem, the Bronx and in the Italian quarter on the lower East Side.

That no greater damage resulted is due to the fact that the bombs were spent against the doors of houses where the intended victims were supposed to reside.

The bomb in Bronx was set off in front of No. 319 East One Hundred and Forty-ninth street by a milk wagon passing over it, after it had failed to explode at the place intended.

The police believe the bombs were the work of "Black Hand" outlaws, who for the past few months have been conducting a campaign of blackmail.

The first explosion occurred in the hallway of the two six-story tenements, Nos. 508 and 510 Third avenue, owned by Salvatore Schiliza. Schiliza has ignored repeated demands for money made in threatening letters signed by the "Black Hand."

The explosion in Harlem almost wrecked the Home Garden Settlement, which occupies the four-story brownstone building at No. 405 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street. On both sides of the settlement live wealthy Italians, one of whom was blown up by a "Black Hand" bomb a year ago.

The explosion in the Bronx did little damage aside from wrecking the stock of a Boston milk wagon, and causing the horse to run away. The bomb was probably intended for Joseph Piccolano, who keeps a grocery store, where the explosion occurred. He admits having received "Black Hand" letters.

GIRL, 14, SHOT BY ACCIDENT

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 22.—Picking up a revolver her mother had bought but a few hours previously and inserting a cartridge, Margaret, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Tela, discharged the weapon at her home, No. 15 Social street, yesterday afternoon, the bullet, one of thirty-eight calibre, entering her side just below the right breast. The little girl is at the Rhode Island Hospital. The surgeons think she will recover.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

CHINA-JAPAN FRICTION IS NEAR CRISIS

PEKIN, Jan. 22.—Foreign diplomats in Pekin look to see the increasing friction between China and Japan culminate any day with a handful of ultimatums or communications which will amount to the same thing from the Celestial kingdom to Tokio.

Indications are that they will include the Hsinmintun railroad controversy, the Middle Island dispute and the treatment of Chinese colonists in Korea.

The general opinion here is that the Chinese have played their cards very shrewdly in their game with the Mikado, and that the latter is more than likely to be placed in a position where he will be forced either to a humiliating back-down or to a display of strength.

China is thoroughly convinced, and the diplomatic corps agrees, that Japan is in no position for a clash with any power at present. It is not only in desperate financial straits, but its cabinet crisis and bitter dissatisfaction among the masses are furnishing the government with all the trouble it can take care of.

The situation has also been so skilfully manipulated that England must take China's side in the Hsinmintun Railway controversy, Russia will be with the Celestial Kingdom in the dispute over the title to Middle Island and the powers generally will be disposed to agree that the Japanese attitude in Korea is a menace to the commercial interests of all the rest of the world.

FLEET LEAVES RIO TO-DAY

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 22.—Rear Admiral Evans gives the signal of departure this afternoon at 3 o'clock and the United States warship fleet will hoist anchor and steam for Punta Arenas, the most southerly town in the world, which will be the next stopping place.

President Penna of Brazil will go with a number of other officials to Fort Villegaignon, from which place they will review the fleet as it passes out to sea, and fifteen Brazilian warships will escort the American vessels for some distance down the coast.

The officers of the fleet yesterday gave a reception on board the Minnesota, the flagship of Rear Admiral Thomas, in return for the courtesies extended to them by the government officials and private individuals during the fleet's visit here.

The affair was a great success, and few, if any, who received invitations failed to take advantage of them.

Fully 3,000 guests attended, including the members of the diplomatic corps, with their wives, the leading members of society, the American residents and a large number of Brazilian naval and military officers. There were also present the officers from the Italian cruiser Puglia and the German cruiser Bremen.

500 COUPLES AT LABOR BALL

Housesmiths and Bridgemen, Local No. 7, held their tenth anniversary ball in Corinthian Hall, Washington street, last night. Over 500 couples attended.

The floor was under the direction of William J. McDonough, assisted by John Reynolds and the following aids: A. Baker, W. H. Pope, James Goodwin, J. J. Pierce, Mark Lyons, Thomas Muldoon, G. A. McKay, E. C. Sullivan, M. J. Young, John Murphy, M. J. Cramp, William Monckton, Thomas Stafford and D. R. Stewart.

Among the invited guests were President P. Maloney and Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Boston Central Labor Union, John J. McLaughlin of the Electricians, Albert Pike, secretary of the building trades section of the Boston C. L. U.; John E. Potts of the Carpenters, John F. Kennedy of the Sheet Metal Workers and a member of the Boston Finance Commission, L. J. Collins of the Hoisting and Portable Engineers and J. C. MacDonald of the Elevator Constructors.

M. K. JESUP DIES TO-DAY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Mr. M. K. Jesup, the famous financier and philanthropist, died early today.

Morris Ketchum Jesup was seventy-seven years old. He was born in Westport, Ct. He entered business as a boy, becoming a clerk in a manufacturing firm, until 1852, when he began his long career as a banker. Retiring from active business in 1884, he became famous as a philanthropist, devoting time and money to a variety of educational, religious and charitable projects.

He was president, since 1881, of the New York City Mission and Tract Society, for which he built the De Witt Memorial Church in memory of his father-in-law, the Rev. Dr. De Witt; president of the Five Points House of Industry, trustee of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, president of the Museum of Natural History, to which he gave a magnificent collection of natural woods, valued at $100,000, a member, and one of the founders of the New York Y. M. C. A. and many other similar organizations.

SHAW QUITS AS TRUST HEAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Leslie M. Shaw has resigned the presidency of the Carnegie Trust company, which he assumed [illegible] March on his retirement from the Treasury portfolio at Washington. His differences with Charles C. Dickinson, the organizer and chief owner of the company, are assigned as the reason for Mr. Shaw's relinquishing the post and $25,000 salary that went with it.

A close friend of Mr. Shaw said:

"Mr. Shaw may head another New York institution, or he may go back West, or he may toss his castor into the political ring and try with Mr. Taft for the Republican Presidential nomination, if Mr. Roosevelt does not shake his big stick too strenuously."

WESTON URGES BOYS TO JOIN HIS WALKING CLUB

Edward Payson Weston, coming to an audience that packed the City Hall in Beverly last night after his record breaking trip from Portland to Chicago, announced that the first tramp of the BOSTON AMERICAN Edward P. Weston Walking Club would be held Saturday afternoon, February 1.

"Come out, boys and girls," said Mr. Weston, "you young people and you old people too. It will do you good. You ride too much and walk too little.

"A week from Saturday the BOSTON AMERICAN Edward P. Weston Walking Club has its first walk here. Already I [illegible] over the project and the membership in the club is growing at a great rate. I'd like to have everybody who is here tonight come with us and see how much better you will feel after it.

Mayor Dow Will Walk.

"I'm going to walk with you," said Mayor Harvey S. Dow, who introduced the great pedestrian to the audience. "This BOSTON AMERICAN walking club is a splendid idea. I'm going to give up riding and learn to walk [illegible] Mr. Weston when he takes his Boston squad."

John Fowler, an old time athlete and pedestrian and a friend of Mr. Weston's, was another who gave notice of his intention to get out and walk.

The announcement of the date of the BOSTON AMERICAN walk was greeted with applause.

Great Reception at Beverly.

Mr. Weston was given a great reception by the Beverly people. Nearly every one of the city officials was present to greet him and when he was introduced by Mayor Dow the audience applauded again and again.

He talked for about fifty minutes telling the incidents of the record breaking trip which made him famous. Then he told of what he had done in New York, where, under the auspices of the Evening Journal, he has been conducting walks twice a week.

"I wish I could show you what this walking has done for the boys of New York," he said. "They took hold of it in grand shape, became enthusiastic over the idea from the start and came out by the thousands to walk with me.

Their Appearance Will Testify.

"We are going to have just as successful walks here in Boston. My advice to you people is to form a club and get under the banner of the BOSTON AMERICAN Edward P. Weston Walking Club.

"It won't be long before you are able to recognize those who are walking. You won't have to look at the lapels of their coats for the white badge. All that will be necessary will be for you to look into their eyes, and when you see a healthy robust boy with a clear eye you can make up your mind that he is out walking with us."

Mr. Weston told his audience how to place the feet on different kinds of pavements so that they would not become blistered when the longer walks were taken. He described how he instructed the young men and the boys in the walking clubs [illegible] every boy on the march found his words of advice [illegible].

How to Walk on Pavements.

"On good footing such as asphalt or well kept macadam you can make better time and get better results by bringing the heel to the ground [illegible] in advance of the ball of the foot," Mr. Weston said. "I don't mean by this that you should pound your heels. That is one of the greatest mistakes in the world. On the rough roads of the country or on the city cobblestones you ought to walk on the flat of the foot. Always try to distribute your weight all over your foot."

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Weston shook hands with everybody in the hall, all being anxious to meet him. He left for New York on the midnight train and today conducts a walk in Brooklyn.

BOGUS HARVARD-YALE TICKET MEN FINED

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 22.—George Layton of Boston and Harry C. Fowler of this city, the men who were charged with having attempted to counterfeit admission tickets to the Harvard-Yale football game, were each fined $200 and costs in the Superior Court here.

The fines and costs were paid and the men released.

Anty Drudge Smoothes Over a Domestic Difficulty.

Wife—"John, you've just got to get some one to care for that auto. Your clothes are full of grease, dirt, cement and dear knows what all. I've tried every chemical cleanser I know, but I can't get them clean."

Anty Drudge—"And you've missed the only thing that will make them clean. Fels-Naptha will take out every spot. Try it! You'll see!"

Men who drive automobiles are learning that Fels-Naptha is a necessary part of a motoring outfit. It is the only soap that will quickly take oil and grease from their hands and faces in cool or lukewarm water.

Most of the women who wash clothes for men who drive or build automobiles learned long ago that Fels-Naptha will take out grease and grime better than any other soap. And Fels-Naptha does it in cool or lukewarm water without boiling the clothes and without hard-rubbing.

The Fels-Naptha way of washing is just as modern as the automobile. The progressive woman has said goodbye to the slow-coach, washboiler, hard-rubbing way of washing and has got aboard the time-saving, labor-saving, clothes-saving Fels-Naptha way of washing.

If you don't know the Fels-Naptha way of washing, it will take only one trial to convince you. Follow easy directions printed on the red and green wrapper.

BELMONT AND RYAN IN SUIT FOR $900,000

CARRY SHONTS CUSTOMS FIGHT TO WASHINGTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Collector E. [illegible] Fowler, collector of the port, stated yesterday that the search of the mansion of Theodore P. Shonts for dutiable goods, as told exclusively in the American yesterday, was by no means the end of the investigation. The inquiry is to be continued and its results are to be submitted in a detailed report to Secretary Cortelyou. [illegible] It was learned on good authority that there will be another visit to the Shonts house by Federal inspectors either today or tomorrow.

Out of the vast array of costly costumes, laces, furs and lingerie, said to have been brought from France and Switzerland without the payment of any duty by Mrs. Shonts and her daughters, Theodora and Marguerite, the inspectors found a large quantity of finery over which there is likely to be considerable controversy. It is maintained by Mr. Shonts that a great many of the costumes are not dutiable, because, he says, they were worn abroad. Still others are exempt, he maintains, for the reason that they had been taken to France to be cleaned and renovated.

On the contrary, the Custom House officials assert that the payment of duty can hardly be escaped on such grounds. All the facts in the case are to be submitted to the head of the Treasury Department for a final determination.

KID WILLIAMS OUTCLASSED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Steve Judge won a six-round bout with Kid Williams at Brown's gymnasium, knocking his opponent down three times during the bout, but was not quite heavy enough to finish him. In the semi-final Patsy Connors and Dick Grant went for six rounds and Patsy won.

HUB WRESTLER LOST.

BATH, Me., Jan. 22.—"Bob" Somerville of Bath defeated Frank West of Boston in a wrestling match here, getting two straight falls. The second fall was secured by the "giant's swing."

GOTCH IN TWO FALLS.

LOWELL, Jan. 22.—Frank Gotch won two falls in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling contest in the Opera House before 1,800 spectators. In the first preliminary, William Veras won a fall from Louis Leeson in 12m. 44s. In the second preliminary, Fritz Hansen of Worcester threw Harry Clayton, an English wrestler, twice, the first fall being won in 23m. 56s. and the second in 17m. 12s. George V. Twohey of Boston was referee.

JACK TWIN HAD THOMAS HELPLESS, BUT COULDN'T LAND KNOCKOUT PUNCH

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—Jack ("Twin") Sullivan of Boston won from Joe Thomas of California at the end of ten rounds, and if the Boston baldy had been present with anything resembling a real punch the fight would have been over in five minutes.

Early in the second round "Twin" nailed Thomas with a straight punch on the jaw as Thomas stepped back to avoid the lead. The blow caught Joe when he was off his balance and sent him down on the floor. Thomas was up again like a flash, and a few seconds afterward stepped into a short right chop to the chin. The blow was a half hook, half swing, aimed high and turned downward with a vicious "snap," caught Thomas fairly on the point of the chin and he staggered backward, dazed and helpless.

Twin Didn't Have the Punch.

Sullivan was all over him like a tiger shooting rights and lefts straight to the jaw. Thomas was unable to get his hands up to protect himself, his chin was a fair mark, and Sullivan hit it a dozen times with that overhand straight right, but not once was he able to score a clean knockdown. At the end Thomas was fighting back gamely, and though bleeding a stream from the nose and mouth, he showed no other sign of having gone through a fierce bombardment.

Practically the same thing happened in the sixth round when Sullivan landed another clean jaw punch, putting Thomas on Queer street. A man with such a punch should have been able to score a knockout in either round, but Sullivan, trying his best, could not down the game lad from San Francisco.

Sullivan has fought ten battles in Los Angeles and the only man he ever stowed away before the local crowd was that miserable excuse for a fighter, Jack Palmer, of England.

Sullivan is sure to go to the limit every time out. He cannot knock the other fellow out and he is very particular to see that the other fellow doesn't knock him out.

Thomas Hog Fat

After the preliminaries, which were good, though too much time was wasted in getting them staged and underway, the main event lads entered the ring. Thomas took off his trimmings and showed up rather wide across the porch. He appeared hog fat, but distressingly healthy withal, and the Twin peeled down to the too well remembered whalebone shape. The old boy is always in trim to fight and he is not a believer in excess baggage.

When the bell rang Thomas went to work to out-box Sullivan. He danced about and landed a few times with a neat straight left. Twin blinked like an old owl, took a few taps in the face and suddenly cut loose with his overhand right. Thomas then began to lead for the body and every time Joe whipped one into the mid-section Sullivan countered with his overhand straight right.

In the very first round Twin began his usual tactics, using his elbow on Thomas's body. In the second Twin took enough of a lead to win a dozen fights and had he been gifted with a punch that would shatter a cream puff he might have won his fight then and there.

Thomas Helpless.

When Thomas was helpless and unable to get his guard into action Sullivan drove three wallops to the body and each time Thomas winced but came back for more. His gameness won him a great ovation at the bell and when he came back in the third, as full of fight as ever, the crowd was with him. Thomas scored several times with hard body blows in the third round, and Twin, apparently satisfied with his lead, stalled and clinched, occasionally shooting a right hander to the jaw.

Sullivan forced the fighting again in the fourth, going after the prominent porch with deadly effect. There was no shadow of an excuse for it, but along toward the end of the round, Sullivan gave Thomas the elbow full in the face. The crowd yelled and Referee Eyton stepped in close, calling to Sullivan, "If you use that elbow again I'll throw you out of the ring."

The fifth was a tough round and about even. Sullivan was on the defensive all the time with Thomas forcing the fighting, landing heavily to the body and taking the jaw counters in return. In the sixth Sullivan landed another chop on the chin and had Thomas groggy and helpless, but could not finish him, and when the bell rang Thomas was boring in and whaling away as though nothing had happened. Thomas was badly punished about the face in this round, and the flow of blood from his nose and mouth nearly choked him.

Joe Comes Back Strong.

Again the the seventh Thomas came back strong and forced the fight, while Sullivan stalled and boxed at long range. Again in the eighth Sullivan landed several clean punches to the jaw; three times Thomas seemed dazed and in trouble, but always fought himself out of dreamland and even in his dazed condition forced the fighting on Sullivan at every stage.

The fighting in the ninth and tenth was fast and furious, both men standing up to slug. Sullivan scored often, but Thomas's body punches carried more steam. The men were fighting hard when the bell stopped them, whereupon they shook hands and wished each other well.

This fight proves that fifteen pounds more weight are not what Joe Thomas needs to make him a great fighter. He is game to the core and can take a beating and bide his time, but against an old stager like John "Twin" he will never have more than an outside chance.

As for Sullivan, he is the same old bird—no better, no worse. The fact that he scored a knockout against Bill Squires proves nothing except that Squires must be blessed with a cobweb jaw.

Western Thunderbolt Finds Stanton Easy Mark

PAPKE WINS IN FOURTH

Bill Papke, the Western thunderbolt, gave the members of the Armory A. A. a little illustration of how he knocked out ring opponents last night, when his victim was Walter Stanton, formerly of San Francisco and lately of New York, accomplishing the trick in four rounds.

The bout was scheduled for twelve sessions, but Papke was in a hurry to get an early train out of town, so cut the time a bit short. But that he did not cause the downfall of Stanton at an earlier period was no fault of his. He made the effort, but found Stanton somewhat of an obstacle to overcome, and it turned out to be quite a battle while it lasted.

Up to the time when Papke fastened on the dream wallop the score could easily be called in Stanton's favor, and he surprised the ringsiders, as well as Papke himself, by his willingness to force matters, and he carried the fight to the Western cyclone till he caved in the fourth round, and the end came abruptly to what promised to be a mill sketch with thrills all the way.

Stanton Gave a Surprise.

Stanton knew he was the underdog before he entered the ring, but he picked up a lot of confidence after he had wound up a bit and found his punch. Papke wanted to do a little feeling out before he slashed in, but not so with Stanton. He was on the job in an instant and busy in getting his blows home ahead of Papke, which made him look good.

Papke was startled by the aggressiveness of his fiery foe and even stalled a bit at times to get his bearings, as Stanton was bristling with steam and was apparently in better shape than the tough middleweight from Illinois. Stanton was striding in fine form, beating Papke to his punch, and catching him on his rushes, timing his wings with good judgment, but the pounding failed to stem the tide of Papke's attack, as he was fighting in clinches as long as one hand was free and kept it up till broken apart by the referee.

There was little science on tap, as both boys were on the surface to slug and see who could get over the silencing punch at short notice. It was a continual clash of crashing storm centres, each swinging for a vulnerable spot when it came within range.

Papke's deadly left did execution, as he had Stanton bleeding freely from the mouth and nose from the hard tapping. Then the Westerner's free use of his loop-the-loop punch in the clinches only helped to increase the agony for Stanton.

Papke a Strong Favorite.

Papke was a two to one favorite before the pair began to swap their ammunition, and some of the hot followers of the boy with the trance wallop were willing to take a chance that their idol would topple the Coast boy over before half the distance was covered.

They looked like perfectly groomed athletes when the stood up awaiting the gong, and Papke appeared patriotic with an American flag circling his waist.

There was a little preliminary fiddling and Stanton was the first to break the ice, aiming a right swing to the jaw and forcing Papke to the ropes, hurling on blow after blow. They were hardly separated when Stanton was at it again and crowded close, piling on rights and lefts. He caught Papke with a right to the jaw which shook the whirlwind to the bottom of his feet. Stanton was coming so fast that Papke was a trifle bewildered. While he was in this condition Stanton hooked a nasty left to the wind with Papke making practically no defense. At the bell they were mixing it warmly and Papke kept slamming and was hissed as Stanton had dropped his guard to turn to his corner.

Stanton's superior showing in the opening round boomed his stock considerably and it looked for a spasm as if Papke was up against it.

It was Stanton in the second round who took the initiative and swung right and left for the head. When they clinched they banged away furiously with the free hand, exchanging crushing jolts. Papke got warmed up to the fray and rushed, but ran into a slashing right to the body which stopped him suddenly. He stood upright with a sneer spread over his features, looking disgustedly at his opponent, who whaled him without a return.

Stanton Slipped in Corner.

Stanton thought he had Papke going, and rushed in turn, missing a right swing, and went into a neutral corner of the ring and half slipped. Papke was on him like a tiger, ripping a wicked uppercut to the head. They were pried apart by the referee and Stanton backed across the ring with Papke in pursuit, but the bell came before he could follow up his advantage.

There was no pretence at the determination of the two boxers to land in the third round. They swept out of their corners and slipped rights over. Then Stanton rushed Papke across the ring, letting fly rights and lefts, and the speed of Stanton's attack was too much even for the husky Papke. Stanton gained courage and in the clinches was holding his own at the infighting game, at which Papke is a master. He crashed a right on Papke's jaw and followed it up with a left wind-jammer. He stabbed Papke and pumped a right over to the jaw when the latter rushed.

Papke was like an enraged bull. With head lowered he dashed in, swinging and hooking with either hand. Stanton tied him up and after the break snapped a right to the jaw which only seemed to anger Papke more.

It was evident that Papke was out for business in the fourth, as he got going in short order. Both boys swung rights at the same time and missed, falling over each other to the floor. Papke was still insistent, and waded in, smashing with both hands. He got Stanton close to the ropes and swung a deadly left hook to the jaw which sent Stanton to the mat. He took the full count, but was a revelation when he got to his feet. He tore into Papke and the Spring Valley wonder was taken completely off his balance for an instant, retreating to the ropes.

Wind-up Was Sudden.

Then he recovered and began to cut Stanton to pieces. He got in close and ripped a right uppercut to the point of the jaw and Stanton measured his length on the boards, while his seconds tossed in the sponge in token of defeat. He was not greatly hurt, but had no heart for any more of Papke's game.

There were a couple of good preliminary eight-round bouts which were hugely enjoyed by the members.

George Freeman of South Boston met Young Manning of Pawtucket, jumping in off the reel, and was always there with a spurt when Manning was having things his own way. Freeman was game all the way and took a lot of punishment from the fast-stepping Manning.

Willie Riley, another South Boston mixer, had Fred Sidney, the lively colored lad to deal with. He landed the cleanest and hardest blows, but Sidney was strong and landed often at close quarters, getting a draw.

M'GUIRE HOPES TO GET BARRETT IN SHAPE TO PLAY STAR GAME THIS SEASON

Manager Deacon McGuire of the Red Sox is counting much on Jimmy Barrett the coming season and hopes to get the veteran's game leg in shape. Barrett will be sent to Hot Springs early and there will boil out before joining the squad at Little Rock.

So far twenty-one players of McGuire's fifty-seven varieties have signed contracts. Thoney has not been heard from, but he has practically accepted terms. President McCaffrey of the Toronto club says Thoney is always a late signer.

The signed contracts of Claude Ritchey and Patsey Flaherty were received at the Boston National League club offices in the Paddock building.

One of the rare things in baseball is a no-run, no-hit game, yet in the last thirty years of play, just sixty-one such games have been played, an average of about two a year. To pitch a no-hit game is a feat every twirler desires to accomplish. Cleveland figured in the second no-hit game on record, being blanked without a bingle by Richmond, of Worcester. This feat happened in 1880.

No-hit games have occurred with regularity in the National League during the last two or three years, but they have been mighty scarce in the American.

Frank Smith of the White Sox, shut out Detroit without a hit during the latter part of the 1905 campaign. During the last two seasons not a single performance has been recorded. Heine Berger of the Naps, had New York shut out hitless for eight and two-third innings, when Elberfeld spoiled his record. Maddox of Wheeling, made his debut with Pittsburg by working in a no-hit game.

Miner Brown has fallen into line and become one of the baseball players who write sport during the Winter. Just how Brown turns out copy with his bum right mit is a mystery. He edits the Sunday edition of a Terre Haute paper. Here are a few of the things Brown will tell about, according to a Western scribe.

Connie Mack was talking about the collegians and had this to say:

"The bright fellows who get in the major leagues from the colleges know that big money is waiting for as many of them as can make good. I guess they figure that playing ball for a snug sum every season, coupled with the fact that ball-playing keeps a fellow in the pink of condition and allows a lay-off of several months during the off season, is better than carrying a civil engineer's chain for $60 a month or doing other work that is fat with tone and title and slim on the circulating medium.

"Another change that all of the old-timers have noticed is this: Nowadays there is absolutely no more professional jealousy among the men; in fact I have noticed time and time again that the older men are always willing to steer the cubs on to all the curves as soon as they break into the big league. This was not so when I first started playing back in the eighties.

"Baseball is becoming a greater National sport every year. Why, look at the size of the teams that play in the major leagues. All of them start with from twenty to twenty-four men, each team carrying never less than three utility men, and most of them have seven or eight pitchers. The greatest all-round ball player that ever lived is Napoleon Lajoie, of Cleveland.

"But I want to say that for a sensational, spectacular star that boy Chase, of the New York Americans, is hard to beat. I never have seen a first baseman that would eclipse him. Lajoie's wonderful skill lies in the fact that he is absolutely a star anywhere on the diamond."

BENEFIT FOR OLD BOXER

"Billy" Wilson, the old-time heavyweight boxer of Roxbury, who was John L. Sullivan's sparring partner in his early days, and who fought some of the best heavyweights of fifteen years ago, who has just returned from the West to his old home, will be tendered a testimonial benefit by his many friends at the Dudley Street Opera House, Roxbury, Thursday evening, in the shape of a vaudeville and athletic show.

NANTUCKET WANTS TO MAKE SPECIAL AUTO LAWS

BY J. C. KERRISON.

As the aftermath of the crusade waged against the town of Nantucket and its automobile restrictions during the past season there now comes a petition, filed in the general courts by Thaddeus C. Defriez and others, requesting that Nantucket be given leave to make laws excluding motor vehicles from the island. The petition prays that the present section of the law giving citizens the right to appeal to the Highway Commissioners on all cases where roads are closed to motorists, be not applied to the town of Nantucket, and that the selectmen of that town be authorized to exclude autos and motor vehicles from the highways of that town. The Committee on Roads and Bridges will in due season give a hearing on this matter, and in the meantime those who desire may travel in motor vehicles over the roads and highways of Nantucket. It is quite possible that great opposition will be presented at the hearing, and among the chief opponents of the scheme will unquestionably be Frank J. Tyler, who waged the war that resulted in the raising of the embargo on motor vehicles in the island town.

The Committee on Metropolitan Affairs will to-morrow give a hearing on Senate Bill No. 6, now pending before the Legislature of Massachusetts, providing for a parkway from Boston across Cambridge and Somerville, to connect at Broadway Park in Somerville with the parkways now existing, which cross the Wellington bridge over the Mystic River.

The City Council of Somerville has passed an order requesting the Mayor to support and favor the proposed legislation.

The object in view is to secure a roadway over which automobiles and other pleasure vehicles may pass through Cambridge and Somerville and avoid the narrow and congested streets over which they are now obliged to go, together with reserved spaces for a direct cross-town line of electric cars from Boston into the Fells.

This parkway would connect the great system of parks and parkways on the north, known as Middlesex Fells and Revere Beach and Lynn Parkway, Mystic Valley Parkway, and others, with the great system of parks and highways south of the Charles River, including those of the Metropolitan Park District, Boston, Cambridge, Brookline and others.

Nine entries of three cars each from Fiat, Itala and Isotta Fraschini have been received for the Targa Floria, the opening speed test of the European season. The race is to be held on a 250-mile circuit in Sicily, and is open to cars having a bore between 120 and 130 millimeters for four-cylinder engines, the conditions being practically the same as last year's race. The Chevalier Florio, who is almost entirely responsible for the financing of the event, refused to accept the conditions of the international conference, this race being the only [illegible] of importance in Europe on other [illegible] Grand Prix rules

POLO PLAYERS WILL FIGHT AT RINK TONIGHT

With that little whirlwind rusher George Bone at its head, the New Haven roller polo team makes its first appearance against Boston in the Park Square Coliseum to-night.

New Haven crowded Boston from the top of the percentage column last week, but is now in second place, and will undoubtedly give the locals the game of their lives.

The visitors have in addition to Bone, the old-time centre, "Wild Charley" Farrell, who has the reputation of being one of the fiercest drivers that ever swatted a polo ball. Captain Bone and McCarthy are on the rush line, Farrell at centre, Saunders or Gardner will play half-back, and Frank Mullen is at goal. The Boston team will stand pat.

SUTTON WON SIXTH GAME.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—George Sutton and George F. Slosson met again in the sixth game of the series. The match was 500 points at 18.2 balk line billiards. Sutton won by a score of 500 to 419.

ROLLER POLO RESULTS.

KAISER GIVES KIEL SOCIETY SHOCK AT BALL

Disguised by Mask, Secretly Attends Fete and Chats With Courtiers.

SMART SET NOW ALARMED

KIEL, Germany, Jan. 22.—Dropping in suddenly, disguised and incognito, at a masquerade ball at the house of his son, Prince Adelbert, here, the Kaiser gave Kiel society a shock from which it will take a long time to recover.

There was no impropriety, but the conversation was a good deal freer, and the gathering decidedly jollier than would have been the case had the maskers known His Majesty was among them. To-day not a few courtiers are wondering whether they said or did anything which may be remembered to their disadvantage.

Prince Warned.

Adelbert has been stationed at Kiel as a naval officer for some time and his house has naturally been the scene of the liveliest merrymaking in the local smart set. The Prince himself had a few moments' warning from his father, but was asked not to reveal the latter's identity.

His majesty wore the costume of the great elector of Brandenburg, his own ancestor of the seventeenth century, and spent the earlier part of the night mingling in the gay throng, joking with the women and exchanging political views with the men in a way to bring out the real thoughts of those to whom he talked.

Stays Till Sunrise.

Toward midnight he suddenly left the room to return unmasked. For a moment there was a gasp of astonishment, then a rush to pay homage to the monarch. The latter behaved graciously, declared he had seldom enjoyed himself more, and remained until sunrise among the dancers.

Despite His Majesty's [illegible] many guests are said to feel rather nervous, and Prince Adelbert is a good deal embarrassed over the odd character of the visit.

ROYAL VICTIM OF MADMAN IS OUT OF DANGER

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Jan. 22.—The Princess Ghika, who was seriously injured in the wreck of her husband's automobile Sunday during a fight between the Prince and his mad chauffeur to prevent the latter from steering the machine over a 100-foot cliff, is pronounced out of danger to-day.

The chauffeur, an Italian, was in love with the Princess, and had troubled her so much with his attentions that she threatened to tell her husband. It was evidently in revenge that the man sought to kill himself and employer.

Though the Prince, suspecting the plan, wrenched the steering wheel from the lunatic's hands in time to prevent the plunge, the auto was tumbled bottom upward in the road, killing the chauffeur and seriously injuring the Princess. The Prince was unhurt.

CAT COMES BACK; WALKS 120 MILES

CATSKILL, N. Y., Jan. 22.—The Reed & Powell Transportation Company of Coxsackie, N. Y., keeps cats in its storehouse as a protection against rats and mice.

On December 7 a barge loaded with hay left the pier for Jersey City. When the barge reached there it was found that Nick, one of the storehouse cats, was on the barge, which was to be laid up for the Winter when unloaded.

Rather than leave Nick on the boat the cat was given to a truckman, who carried it in a bag two miles back in Jersey.

Last Saturday morning, when the dock master at Coxsackie opened the storehouse and called the cats for their morning meal Nick appeared with the others.

The cat had made its way from Jersey City to Coxsackie, 120 miles, on foot. Except being somewhat thin, Nick is as good as ever.

BRIDE WEARS BRONZE WRAPS

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Jan. 22.—Miss Elsie, eldest daughter of Gen. William J. Palmer, founder of Colorado Springs, has married Leopold Hamilton Myers of Cambridge, England.

The wedding took place at Glen Eyrie, in the presence of guests from New York and London. The bride wore neither veil nor jewels, but her trousseau includes a long brown wrap with huge bronze buckles, looped around with cords supporting 1,000 tiny bronze animals of all descriptions.

WOMAN WEDS 3 BROTHERS

TO[illegible]DO, Jan. 22.—All records for peculiar [illegible]rriages in the State were broken to-day when Lucoel Greene, thirty-eight years old, giving her residence as Monroe, Mich., secured a license to wed William Greene, thirty-two, a brother of her two deceased husbands.

William Greene lives at Shanahan, Ill., and did not arrive in the city until several hours after the license was secured by the widow of his two brothers. They met at the courthouse and departed, saying they were going to be married.

LABOR QUERY ROUTS SENATE REPUBLICANS

Culberson, Democratic Leader, Asks Freedom of Speech and Thought for Miners.

DAYTON'S ORDER RAPPED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Republican leaders in the senate were driven to cover after a vain attempt to sidestep an embarrassing labor question thrown into their camp unexpectedly by Senator Culberson, the Democratic leader.

Culberson introduced a resolution calling upon the Judiciary Committee to investigate the decision rendered by United States Judge Alston G. Dayton of West Virginia last October.

It restrained all union miners in his jurisdiction from considering or discussing the question of unionizing the men employed in the mines operated by the Hitchman Coal & Coke Company.

The minority leader asked unanimous consent to have the resolution referred at once to a committee to pass upon the sum necessary to enable the Judiciary Committee to make a complete investigation and report whether Congress should not amend the present laws, "so that a body of workingmen might at least think and discuss among themselves questions of interest to them."

He asked leave to file the bill of complaint and the restraining order of Judge Dayton, which he said was one of the most unusual and sweeping ever issued against a labor organization.

Senator Hale opposed the proposition at first declaring that a dangerous precedent would be established if the Senate should once begin to review the decisions of judges, and urged Senator Culberson to drop the matter.

Mr. Culberson, however, declined to do this. He explained that the order was issued by Judge Dayton against John Mitchell and the United Mine Workers and forbade them even to "discuss or think about plans to invite the employes in this plaintiff's mine to join their organization."

Scott and Elkins, the two West Virginia Senators, are busy seeking a way out of the difficulty in order not to jeopardize their political control of the miners. Senator Culberson will bring the question up again to-day.

Hands Off! Let Boston Have Home Rule

Let the Legislature Give Boston Authority to Choose HER OWN Charter Commission

If a commission is to govern Boston or frame a charter for it, that commission should be chosen BY THE CITY.

How would Massachusetts like it if Congress should appoint a commission to draw up a new constitution for the State, or attempt to govern the State through a Federal commission? What would our Legislature on Beacon Hill think of that? They would declare it a grievous breach of State rights and the principle of local self-government. So is the attempt to govern Boston by a State commission a breach of city rights based on the same principle of local self-government.

National sovereignty in national affairs, State sovereignty in State affairs and municipal sovereignty in municipal affairs—that is the true principle, and the sooner our legislatures recognize it in full the better it will be for the civic life of our cities.

Nothing develops either a man or a city like responsibility, and nothing checks development like being TIED TO THE APRON STRINGS OF A MATERNAL STATE.

California, Washington, Minnesota and some other States have given cities the right to frame their own charters, subject to the constitution and general laws of the State, just as each State has a right to make its own constitution, subject to the constitution and laws of the nation.

There is no more justice in having Springfield, Worcester, Lowell, Fall River, or their representatives make a charter for Boston than there would be in having New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California or their representatives make a constitution for Massachusetts.

In Germany a municipality is free to do anything it likes that is not contrary to the laws above it. Municipal home rule has full swing, with marked advantages in awakening local patriotism and securing men of high character and ability to manage city affairs.

In this State a city must ASK PERMISSION FOR EVERYTHING.

Our law classes cities as having no right of self-government—a fact which may be regarded as affording legal grounds for calling a city "she." A municipality has no independent initiative of its own and it is the only human thing in America that hasn't it. Our cities belong to the dependent and defective classes.

So pronounced is this State paternalism that a city of half a million people cannot even connect two of its own public buildings by an electric wire without permission from the Legislature and the Electric Trust.

A few years ago Boston wanted to run a wire from the City Hall to the Old Court House, over or under the little alley that separates the two buildings, in order to light the Court House from the dynamo in City Hall.

A bill was framed for that purpose, accompanied by petition from the Mayor of Boston, but the electric light companies opposed the bill, so the Legislature refused to pass it, and Boston could not run a wire between two of her own buildings, over or under her own street.

It is time we got away from this old, moss-grown rule of the Middle Ages. It is time the State ceased to treat its cities as children unfit to be trusted with the management of their own local affairs in their own way.

Let the sphere of municipal sovereignty be clearly marked out as the sphere of State sovereignty is and then give our cities home rule within their proper sphere.

INSTEAD OF APPOINTING A COMMISSION TO FRAME A CHARTER FOR BOSTON, LET THE LEGISLATURE AUTHORIZE BOSTON TO CHOOSE HER OWN CHARTER COMMISSION TO DRAW UP AN UP-TO-DATE CHARTER TO BE SUBMITTED TO THE PEOPLE FOR ADOPTION OR REJECTION AT THE POLLS.

THE LESSON OF THE CONVICTION OF WALSH

That a Chicago Federal jury, however reluctantly, has found bank wrecker John R. Walsh guilty of misappropriating the funds intrusted to him is good news for honest men. The long fight Walsh has made to save him from his deserts will be continued. Unfortunately he is not yet in the penitentiary.

But a mere conviction is an important victory. And inasmuch as it is also a victory over all his thieving but "respectable" sort, Chicago justice has done a work which is of high service to public morals and of which it may well be proud.

Walsh is one of the many malefactors in public life whose shortcomings were first exposed by the Hearst newspapers.

When he was arrested he was very bitter in his denunciation of the Chicago American and the Chicago Examiner, accusing these newspapers of "sensationalism."

For twenty-five years Walsh was the most dangerous financial force in the Middle West. He was banker, speculator, politician and corruptionist.

In addition to these things he posed as a pillar of conservative business, and kept a canting, hypocritical newspaper, the now dead Chicago Chronicle, which, pretending to the highest ideals of journalism, practiced the lowest devices of blackmail upon officials who could deposit public moneys in the Walsh banks or further the interests of the Walsh enterprises.

When the swollen greed of this man extended his interests too far, or, in other words, when he sought to get a limited number of fingers into an unlimited number of other people's pockets, he failed—and for twenty-six million dollars.

Men of his type, and some better men, came to his rescue, but while they rehabilitated some of his wrecked companies, they COULD NOT SAVE HIM FROM THE CONSEQUENCES OF HIS RASCALITY.

Every effort made by the Government to fix his notorious guilt upon him was opposed with the energy of desperation.

There was talk of attempted bribery in the Grand Jury room. Quarters were hired across the street from the chamber in which that body was considering the evidence against the banker, and, armed with binoculars, agents read the papers under consideration and reported hourly to Walsh.

But the facts were damning, and they did their work. After a trial that taxed the endurance of everybody concerned, followed by a three days' consideration of its verdict by the jury, Walsh has been found guilty, and cynical scoundrelism has been taught that justice can prevail in this country, even when its violators are men of great wealth, high connections and of that type of respectability which in too many cities benumbs with awe the men whose business it is to put malefactors in their legally appointed place—THE CELL OF THE FELON.

It would be difficult in Boston to point to any one man who holds the dominating position in the local financial world that Walsh for twenty-five years held in that of Chicago.

Yet this one-time buttress of the city's commercial structure, this self-righteous, self-appointed regulator of public morals, this Midas whose fingers turned to gold—and tenaciously stuck to—everything they touched, has been first reduced to bankruptcy and next placed perilously near to the small room whose steel doors confine many of his LESS THIEVISH BUT MORE BUNGLING FELLOWS.

There are many Walshes in this country. They cast discredit upon the honest men who manage the vast majority of the banks, they menace the savings of every class of citizens, and their smug respectability makes their punishment extremely difficult.

Chicago has taught her sister cities, including Boston, a lesson in this affair which will repay VERY HARD [illegible]Y THOUGHTFUL STUDY.

Bobbie's Essays

By William F. Kirk

HUSBANDS

NOW, Bobbie, my teacher sed, how do you think a yung girl shud win a husband. sum of the other children in yure class has ritten essays about this & now that thay have dun thare best I want you to show them up, she sed.

Teacher, sed I, let me see thare essays, after which, I sed, I will show you that I am still the boy essayer, I sed. This was sum of the essays she showed me:

> Be sweet & modest; remember that yure gurlhood is the brites & sweetest & fairest thing in the world; let the yung man feel when he calls at yure parents' home that he is worshipping at a shrine; maik him feel that when he wipes his feet on the rug outside the door he is using a prayer rug. The romping gurls, the giddy gurls, thay are all rite for a mans companyons in idle hours, but it is not such as these that the yung man wishes to maik the wife of his bosom and the receiver of his bankroll. Remember that, gurls, taik it from me. LITTLE BEATRICE.
>
> It seems to me the way a maid shud win her lord & master, the one [illegible] to whom she shall turn all thru life for tenderest & deepest luv, the way of all ways is Luv itself. Luv that directs the swing of the Planets around thare suns, Luv that maiks the world go around but nevver git any farther ahead. Luv that teeches the littel burds to sing thare [illegible]. Thare is no sweeter site in the world than to see a gurls hart open like the pettals of a morning glory. I luv to luv. LITTLE ELLA.

Now, teacher, I sed, after I had red the esays, I must have time to think. I must also have a litle time to talk it over with Pa & Ma. So I went hoam.

The man nevver lived, Ma toald me, wich cud not be won by kindness & a sweet face & karakter. It is time enuf to use crule words & show a meen temper, Ma sed, after the wedding march has been played & and the German musishuns has folded up thare cornets & stoal away to the palm garden, she sed. After that glad time, she sed, a gurl can talk to her deer husband like she used to talk to her mother at hoam, but that is neether hear nor thare, beekaus the husband is won.

Vary good, sed Pa. Now let me talk, sed Pa. Thare are many ways toald in the paipers about how a gurl shud win a husband, & if moar young men red the paipers they wud be on the watch for these systems, Pa sed, & would sidestep when thay saw the lite of a pure hart & a weitht of Luv shining under the More-Sell waives, sed Pa.

Remember, when you grow up, Bobbie, Pa sed, all these systems of wich you read of in the paipers, & think long & carefully. When you see a gurl Davy Crockett aiming at you in the tree doant say like the coon sed to Mister Crockett Doant Shoot, I'll Cum Down, & if you will taik my advice, doant ask the gurl up in the tree either, sed Pa.

Bide God's Time

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

OUT of the wilderness, out of the night
Has the black man crawled to the dawn of light,
Beaten by lashes and bound by chains,
A beast of burden with soul and brains,
He has come thro' sorrow and need and woe,
And the cry of his heart is to know, to know.
You took his freedom and gave it again,
But grudged as you gave it, ye white-faced men.
Not all of freedom is being free,
And a dangerous plaything is liberty
For untaught children.

In vain do you say,
"We gave what he asked for—place and pay
And right of franchise." All wrong, all wrong,
He was but a child to be led along
By the hand of Love. Has he felt its touch?
Nay, you gave unwisely and gave too much,
But you gave not the things that his groping mind
Was reaching up in the dark to find—
They were Love and Knowledge.

Oh, infinite
Must be the patience that hopes to right
The wrongs that are heavy with age and brought
To the level of virtues, by mortal thought,
And greater than patience must be the trust
In the ultimate outcome of what is just,
And in and under and through and above
Must weave the warp of the purpose—love.

Red with anguish his way has been,
This suffering brother of dusky skin,
For centuries fettered and bound to earth,
Slow his unfolding to freedom's birth,
Slow his rising from burden and ban
To fill the stature of normal man.
You must give him his wings ere you tell him to fly;
You must set the example and bid him try.
Let the white man pay for the white man's crime—
Let him work in patience and bide God's time.

Out of the wilderness, out of the night
Has the black man crawled to the dawn of light.
He has come through the valley of great despair—
He has borne what no white man ever can bear.
He has come through sorrow and pain and woe,
And the cry of his heart is to know, to know.

It's 'the Punch' That Lands the Winners

By Oliver Cromwell

MR. PAPKE of Illinois placing his gloved fist in that part of the anatomy of Mr. Stanton of California where it would have the most influence is an exponent of art.

You may read about Mr. Papke and Mr. Stanton in another page of this newspaper. They are pugilists whose mission in life is to deliver "the punch," as it concerns them.

It's "the punch" that counts—or causes the count to be taken.

Men fight, with or without gloves, for prizes.

At the Tremont Theatre this week you may see a good fight. It isn't with fists, gentle reader, but "the punch" comes in the last act just the same, and in the meanwhile the sparring is highly interesting.

"The Man of the Hour" is in four rounds—or acts, if you please—and the best man wins.

Mayor Hibbard's applause from the box had an uproarious echo in the gallery. We all really like to see the best man win. It's good human nature.

"He's a game bird," says Alderman Phelan just before the curtain goes down on the defeated Boss, "but he flies queer"—and one can't help feeling sympathy for the bird even in its flight—because it is "game." That is an American characteristic.

But it's "the punch" that accounts for the run of 600 nights by "The Man of the Hour" in New York and its enthusiastic reception in Boston. It wins out for honesty and decency—for clean living and right loving.

Incidentally some politicians and capitalists might take notice.

"The Man of the Hour" is not merely a clever play; it is a sign of the times.
